Acheson Hit By Vishinsky As He Denies Grab in China

Moscow (Saturday), Jan. 21 (AP).—Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky today called "monstrous and awkward" lies statements by United States Secretary of State Dean Acheson that Russia is annexing four northern provinces of China.

He described Acheson's statements, made in a speech at the National Press Club in Washington January 12, as "efforts to hide behind a slanderous smokescreen and place on the USSR responsibility for the failure of his own policies" in China.

(The State Department said in Washington there would be no immediate comment on the Russian statement.)

Friendship Treaty Near?

Vishinsky's denial that Russia is incorporating Manchuria, Inner and Outer Mongolia, and Sinkiang, coincided with the arrival in Moscow of Chou En-lai, Foreign Minister of the Russian-recognized Chinese People's Republic.

Chou's visit, combined with the fact that his premier, Mao Tze-tung, has been in Moscow over a month, led some to believe negotiations for a treaty of friendship are nearing a climax.

The importance attached to Vishinsky's statement is indicated by the method of releasing it. Foreign correspondents were summoned to the Kremlin at 1 a. m. (5 p. m., EST) to be handed copies of the five-page document

Vishinsky's denial of aggression was absolutely categorical. He said "that in all these declarations by Acheson there is not one word of truth." He described the four provinces as integral parts of China and added that the Chinese now have a government capable of defending its own territory.

Soviet-Chinese relations, he said, were based on mutual friendship and respect for the independence and territorial integrity of both states.

Calls U. S. "Annexationist"

Vishinski denounced American policy in China as foredoomed to failure, because, he said it supported the reactionary elements and failed to take into account the facts of the situation such as the collapse of the Chiang Kai-shek government.

The whole idea of Acheson's speech, Vishinsky said, was "to put a good face on a bad game—the failure of American policy in Asia."

The Soviet diplomat also accused Acheson of being an "annexationist" himself. He said this was indicated by the sections of Acheson's remarks calling Japan, the Philippines and Ryukyu Islands in the defensive line of the United States. None of these, he said, is American territory.

Barrett May Demand Apology In O'Hara Slapping Incident

BARRETT — Police Chief, Congressman and Police Private in slapping incident — O'HARA — BIXLER

Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of police, said last night he will personally investigate the report that Representative Barratt O'Hara (D., Ill.) slapped a policeman.

"If Congresman O'Hara slapped the policeman, I'm going to demand an apology," Barrett declared last night at a specially convened press conference.

A memorandum submitted to Barrett earlier by Capt. Loraine T. Johnson of the Traffic Division identified O'Hara as the policeman's assailant.

Quick Retort to Demand

U. S. to Break With Bulgaria If Our Minister Is Evicted

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

The United States threatened yesterday to break off diplomatic relations with Communist Bulgaria.

The American warning came less than a day after Bulgaria had demanded the recall of American Minister Donald R. Heath for alleged complicity with "spies and traitors."

Unless Bulgaria cancels this demand and observes "established international standards of conduct," the State Department retorted, the United States will withdraw its entire diplomatic staff from Sofia and would send the Bulgarian mission home from Washington. There was no time limit within which Bulgaria was told to comply.

Dr. Peter Voutov, the Bulgarian charge d'affaires here, was summoned to the State Department yesterday morning and received the note during a tense 12-minute meeting with Llewellyn Thompson, Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for European Affairs.

In the old days a break in diplomatic relations was usually a prelude to war or, at the very least, a sign of hostility or disapproval.

This time, American officials hurried to explain, a break with Bulgaria would not be meant as a show of disapproval. The United States has disapproved and even loathed many of the Bulgarian government's actions since it resumed diplomatic relations in 1947.

But the real cause of the break, if it comes, will be what yesterday's American note described as "a series of indignities and restrictions which have now made it virtually impossible for the Legation to perform its normal diplomatic and consular functions."

"In addition to crippling restrictions on the entry and movement of United States officials assigned to the Legation," the note

Administration Seeking Way To Aid Korea

The Administration, badly shaken by the rejection of the Korea aid bill in the House, began searching yesterday for some way to reverse the decision.

There was no doubt that a new approach would be tried, although House Democratic leaders said they would not reintroduce the 60-million-dollar measure which failed on Thursday by a 193-to-191 vote.

One possible device is a Senate resolution to amend the present ECA act, which includes 125 million dollars for China. The authority to spend this money expires February 15, but an estimated 106 million dollars of it is still unspent.

The Senate might extend the February 15 time-limit and let the money be used in the "general area of China"— a form of words previously written into the Military Assistance Act. The area would thus include southern Korea, and the House could reverse its decision of Thursday—if the Administration could muster enough votes.

Another possibility would be to include a fund for Korea in the pending $3,100,000,000 ECA bill and let some of it be used retroactively during the present fiscal year. Consultations on strategy waited yesterday for Chairman Tom Connally (D., Tex.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to return from a visit home.

Analyzing Thursday's vote, officials found at least three elements

U. S. Sells Warship For $35,000; Buys Scrap for $101,731

Representative Angell (R., Oreg.) said yesterday that the Government sold the old battleship Oregon for scrap for $35,000 and bought back from the salvage company material from the ship for $101,731.

The Oregon, which made the trip around The Horn in 1898 to take part in the defeat of the Spanish fleet at Santiago, Cuba, was decommissioned and loaned to Oregon as a historical monument.

In the Second World War, the Navy sold it for salvage because of need of war material.

Angell said in the Congressional Record the Government paid Edward M. Ricker & Co. a total of $101,731 for material from the ship, which it had sold for $35,000.

He said the Navy later took the hull back and now faces suit from the company for doing this.

Cold Keeps Veep From Texas Fete; Slight, Says Wife

Vice President Alben W. Barkley was suffering from a cold last night, serious enough to force him to pass up the meeting of the Texas State Society at Hotel Mayflower.

Mrs. Barkley, terming it as "slight," said the Veep expected to be well enough to keep a speaking engagement in Pittsburgh Sunday night.

However, Chief Justice Vinson and other justices of the high tribunal as well as most of the Cabinet attended the Texas Society's banquet which was in honor of Associate Justice Tom Clark, first Texan ever to sit on the Supreme Court.

Railroad Strike To Bring Closing Of Big Steel Plant

Pittsburgh, Jan. 30 (AP).—The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen tonight called a strike against a Jones and Laughlin Steel Corp. subsidiary which will force closing the big Pittsburgh works of the steel firm at 6 a. m. Saturday.

The 400 striking railroad trainmen are employed by the Monongahela connecting railroad which serves the plant.

President Richard L. Barnes of the railroad said the strike was the result of the railroad's dismissal of conductor W. J. Legge, jr., discharged when he was held responsible for the accidental death of a brakeman.

Board Pins McAuliffe Action On Corning's 'Inconsistencies'

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

Board of Education members said yesterday they refused to appoint Miss Eleanor McAuliffe as principal of Sousa Junior High School because Schools Superintendent Hobart M. Corning failed to explain "inconsistencies" in his recommendation.

A majority of members who voted against Corning's choice for the position indicated the appointment was brought before them at the last minute and there was conflicting information.

Every member of the board praised Miss McAuliffe's qualifications for the position. Two members who voted against her at Wednesday's school board meeting said they still have an open mind on the appointment.

Miss McAuliffe, assistant principal of Paul Junior High School and sister of Maj. Gen. Anthony McAuliffe of Bastogne fame, lost the appointment by a 5-to-3 vote.

Mrs. Edward C. Magdeburger and Albert E. Steinem said the superintendent should reevaluate the qualifications of the three top candidates for the job and clarify the procedure under which he selected Miss McAuliffe.

U. S. to Enroll 150,000 Air Spotters

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Plans to enroll 150,000 civilian volunteers into a new "Aircraft Observers Corps"—to be organized in 25 States and the District of Columbia as part of the Nation's air defenses—were announced yesterday at the Pentagon.

After training as plane spotters and other key personnel in an aircraft warning system, the volunteer organization will be maintained on a standby basis, the Department of Defense said.

Tied in with the new radar screen being built in the United States, Canada and Alaska, the Observers Corps will be depended upon to maintain a 24-hour-a-day watch in an emergency "to give warning of impending enemy attack by air," said the announcement.

Men and Women Sought

Recruiting of interested men and women will begin almost immediately. Some 6000 observation posts will be set up throughout Atlantic Coast and Northwestern States and filter centers and control centers will be established at key points.

Lieut. Col. Thomas J. Hayes 3d, who represented the District of Columbia at a two-day conference at the Pentagon concluded last night, said that there will be one observation station in Washington.

Hayes said he will present the Pentagon program to the District Commissioners as soon as possible, probably on Tuesday, so plans can go forward.

The Washington observation post will be established in the southeast section of the city, probably on the roof of a building on high ground to give the best view, he said. No definite point has been selected.

As the national plan calls for keeping filter centers and control headquarters out of large cities, none will be established here. Hayes said about 25 civilian volunteers will be needed to man the local observation post on a round-the-clock basis.

Virginia Needs 5500

Virginia officials who took part in the planning for the program disclosed that it calls for 268 observation stations to be established throughout the State. Some 5000 to 5500 volunteers would man the posts.

Commissioner R. V. Long, head of the Virginia division of planning and economic development, told The Washington Post that he had reported to Gov. John S. Battle last night and the Governor is "inclined to go along with it."

District of Columbia participation in the program will be small, it was revealed, while Maryland officials taking part withheld comment for the time being.

Maryland representatives at the Pentagon meeting were Lieut. Col. David G. McIntosh, State director of civil defense, with headquarters at Pikesville, and Richard Jameson of Baltimore, director of the State Aviation Commission.

McIntosh told The Washington Post that it will be several months before details of the plan, as it affects local communities, are settled.

Virginia representatives at the conference were R. V. Long, director of the State Planning Board, Col. C. W. Woodson, head of the State Police, and Lieut. C. L. Fuller, also of the State Police.

Hiss Jurors Locked Up; Out 7 Hours

By John Chabot Smith

New York, Jan. 20 (NYHT). The fate of Alger Hiss was in a jury's hands for the second time tonight, and all signs pointed to another long argument among the jurors.

At 10:45 p. m., after the jurors had been out 7 hours and 35 minutes, they were ordered by the court to retire for the night and resume deliberations at 10 a. m. today.

Hung Jury in First Trial

If convicted Hiss faces a maximum penalty of five years in prison and $2000 fine on each count of a two-count indictment, and the probable failure of his libel suit against Whittaker Chambers, his original accuser. The first trial ended in a hung jury July 8, with the jurors voting eight for conviction and four for acquittal.

The issue before the jury is perjury, but to decide it they must decide whether Hiss actually was a Communist spy when he worked in the State Department in 1948. This is the charge first made by Chambers on August 3, 1948, and later elaborated to include the transmission of secret Government documents to Chambers and the spy ring.

After five hours of deliberation the jury returned to the court room at 8:25 to hear again sections of the testimony given in the 30-day trial. Two court stenographers read to them the transcription for more than half an hour.

40-Minute Charge by Judge

The jury of eight women and four men had retired to consider their verdict at 3:10 p. m. after a 40-minute charge by Judge Henry W. Goddard and a three-hour summation of the Government's case by Thomas F. Murphy, assistant United States attorney.

At 5 p. m. they were back in the courtroom, asking to have long passages from the testimony read to them. Their request indicated that they were primarily interested in two things—the old Woodstock typewriter on which some of the spy papers had been typed, and the trip to Peterborough, N. H., which Chambers said he had made with Mr. and Mrs. Hiss in August, 1937.

The judge said it would take a long time to read all the testimony they had asked for. The stenographer estimated it would take five days. The jury decided to withdraw and reframe their question more specifically.

At 5:30 they were back with another request. They no longer wanted the Peterborough testimony, but they wanted all the testimony of Mrs. Hiss and the Catlett brothers relating to the typewriter, as well as all documents known to have been typed on it, and the spy papers which are alleged to have been typed on it.

Asked for Defense Testimony

They had only asked for the testimony of defense witnesses concerning the typewriter. Murphy objected to the form of the jury's request, and Judge Goddard asked counsel for both sides to study the testimony and try to reach agreement on what should be read to the jury.

Meanwhile Judge Goddard adjourned the court at 5:48 until 7:15, and the jury went out for supper. By 8:25 p. m. counsel had reached agreement and reading of the transcript began.

Urge Preventive Measures

Athlete's Foot Called Peril To Heart and Blood Stream

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

Another enemy to the human heart and blood circulation—athlete's foot—was publicly recognized here yesterday by experts in cardiovascular ills.

The danger, they solemnly decreed, is "a relationship between the damage of the skin secondary to fungus infections and the development of thrombo-phlebitis."

As a preventive measure against the blood vessel inflammations and their further risks of fatal blood clots, the heart experts recommended that anti-fungus steps be taken at "such public places as swimming pools, gymnasiums, athletic clubs, schools, etc."

The recommendation was one of many "guiding principles" for an all-out fight against heart and blood ills, made public yesterday as approved by the National Conference on Cardiovascular Diseases.

The conference, attended by about 200 doctors, scientists and community leaders, closed with major approval of its working committee reports.

Also recommended were preventive measures against congenital heart defects, the use of penicillin or sulfadiazine in dental extractions, tonsillectomies and other operations carrying a risk of bacterial invasion of the heart, and a host of others to increase or improve research and treatment of cardiovascular disorders.

The body apparently ignored advice from its subcommittee on congenital heart disease urging induced abortion in pregnant women who get rubella (German measles) within the first three months of pregnancy. It also skirted the committee's further advice that marriageable women be inoculated with the virus disease before pregnancy to prevent its occurrence during the danger period. A high percentage of congenital ills, including malformed hearts and idiocy, has been traced to German measles during the early months of pregnancy.

For the public press, at least, the conference body in this regard recommended only: "Avoidance of German measles and other virus infection by women during the first three months of pregnancy, since such infections often cause congenital malformations of the heart, congenital cataracts and mental retardation."

Asked if the word "avoidance" would include the immunity inoculations, the committee chairman, Dr. Helen Taussig, diagnostician at Johns Hopkins Hospital, declined to answer. The conference, she said, voted the wording acceptable without instructing her to explain it.

2 Hold Up Little Joe Scheve, May Have Gotten $6000 Loot

Theodore (Little Joe) Scheve, 30, Washington gambler, was held up and robbed by two thugs in Northeast Washington, it was learned yesterday.

Scheve, who lives at 2521 34th st. se., was in the robbery squad room at police headquarters last Sunday, apparently to talk to police about the holdup.

Yesterday Maj. Robert J. Barrett, Superintendent of Police, admitted police have a report of the robbery and that they are investigating it.

He refused to disclose any details about it other than that Scheve was with a cab driver, who was robbed of his cab at the same time. The cab was recovered a short while later, a few blocks from the scene of the robbery, he said.

Reports at headquarters placed the amount of money Scheve lost to the thugs as high as $6000. Barrett would not disclose the sum, but said it was nowhere near that.

He added the robbery had no

Roberts Couple Found Guilty In Dope Case

James Roberts, described as "one of the big fish" in Washington's narcotics traffic, was convicted in District Court yesterday on eight counts of peddling marihuana and cocaine.

His pretty wife, Evelina (Tinky) Roberts was also found guilty on four counts of illegally transferring marihuana.

A jury of five women and seven men deliberated six and one half hours before its foreman, William R. Edwards, jr., 28, a Naval Gun Factory draftsman, 2830 Shipley ter. se., presented the verdict to Judge F. Dickinson Letts.

The 41-year-old Roberts faces a maximum penalty of 40 years in jail and fines totaling $16,000. His wife, 23, can be sentenced to 20 years in jail plus fines of $8000. Their home is at 744 Girard st. nw.

Both were committed to jail by Judge Letts pending a presentence investigation by the probation office.

The jury found Roberts innocent of two counts of peddling codeine.

Assistant United States Attorney Arthur J. McLaughlin prosecuted the case. Joseph and Josiah Lyman represented the

Slips 'Puzzle' Numbers Man In Lewis Trial

By Benjamin Bradlee
Post Reporter

An admitted numbers writer testified reluctantly yesterday that numbers slips seized March 25 in a raid on the Maryland headquarters of William "Snags" Lewis bore the code number he has been using for 10 years.

Parker Roberston, 811 R st. nw., freely admitted that he writes "a few digits now and then," that he works a territory between 11th st. and New Jersey ave. nw., and that his code number is "C-2."

But although the slips all bore the code number "C-2" and Robertson admitted some of the handwriting on them was his, he refused to answer positively the question put to him by assistant prosecutor Edward L. Carey: "Are these your numbers slips?"

"It's pretty hard for me to say. Some of them there is my handwriting, but some of it, I've never been able to write that good in my life. It's too much of a puzzle for me. They could have been stolen," Robertson replied.

Carey then announced "surprise" and received permission from Judge Alexander Holtzoff to cross-examine his own witness.

"Didn't you tell me less than an hour ago that these slips were in your handwriting and identify them by putting your signature on the back of them?"

"I told you the handwriting looked like mine. I don't want to be convicting myself or anyone else. I feel like I did wrong. I

Reds in Berlin Turn Back Trucks Heading for West

Berlin, Jan. 20 (U.P.).—Russian authorities tonight turned back a "considerable number" of trucks bound from Berlin to Western Germany in one of the largest traffic stoppages since the Berlin blockade was lifted, West Berlin police announced.

The stoppage followed East German threats to restrict rail traffic, interpreted as a sign the Communists may clamp a new blockade on this isolated capital.

Western officials earlier today said they were ready to start the airlift again if the East Germans sought to block all surface traffic. Maj. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, American commandant in Berlin, canceled a trip to the United States "because of the situation here."

Soviet-zone officials threatened to restore a partial blockade after West German police, with United States approval moved into an American-zone building housing headquarters of the Soviet-run railway administration.

Police Quiz Brink's Guard In $1,500,000 Boston Holdup

Boston, Jan. 20 (U.P.).—William L. Manter, a Brink's guard who disappeared temporarily today, was taken into custody in suburban Waltham tonight

Manter was the guard whose appearance at work Tuesday night scared away nine bandits who took $1,500,000 from the vault of Brink's, Inc.

He was picked up by Waltham police shortly after a State-wide alarm was sent out reporting that he was missing from his home and failed to report for work. He was wearing a blue pea-jacket when taken to the Waltham police station.

Lieut. Frank Wilson of Boston was accompanied by Detective William Parlan when he went to get Manter and bring him to Boston for questioning. Parlan kept hold of Manter's arm while taking him from the Waltham station to a police car.

The Boston officers had spent 15 minutes searching Manter's automobile. From it they took a Brink's cap and a roll of automobile tape.

The bandits who held up Brink's vault Tuesday night wore pea jackets and chauffeur caps. They sealed the lips of five Brink's employes with adhesive tape.

Manter has been an employe of Brink's for 22 years. His family said he failed to show up at work because "he just took the day off."

House Beats Rules Change In a Victory For Truman

(Roll Call on Page 7)

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The House yesterday badly defeated a Rules Committee coalition grab for more power by a vote of 236 to 183 in the Administration's first victory of the session.

The vote reinstated the 21-day Eberharter discharge rule, under which bottled-up Truman bills can be forced to a House vote on special discharge days, twice a month.

Truman Democrats, joined in force by Republicans from progressive districts, dealt a surprising blow to the reborn GOP-Southern Democrat coalition.

More than that, a serious cleavage developed in Republican ranks, with nearly 40 percent of the Republicans voting bolting the old guard GOP leadership.

Truman Democratic leaders, who expected to win by a much less impressive margin, frankly gave their thanks to the "Progressive Republicans."

How Parties Split

Here's how the two parties split:

For the Cox resolution repealing the 21-day discharge rule: 85 Democrats, mainly from Southern and border States, and 98 Republicans.

Against repeal of the rule: 171 Democrats, 64 Republicans, and one American-Laborite.

As a result, the Administration's fair employment practices measure will be one of nine Rules Committee-blocked bills subject to discharge when the House meets under the reinvigorated Eberharter rule Monday.

But whether Speaker Sam Rayburn (Tex.), personally opposed to FEPC, will recognize House Labor Chairman John Lesinski (D., Mich.) to make the discharge motion is still a wide-open question.

Recognition Up to Speaker

When more than one chairman seeks to discharge the Rules group the Speaker alone decides which shall be recognized.

Rayburn yesterday, however, went all out against the Cox resolution repealing the discharge procedure.

In one of his rare speeches from the floor, Rayburn said as far as he was concerned civil rights wasn't involved in the dispute.

The issue was, he said, whether the program laid down by the Administration "is going to be sabotaged."

"Who won the election in 1948, anyhow?" he shouted.

The Speaker took the floor to

Officials of the Export-Import Bank and the State Department have said they would like to help the new nation with a loan, especially since independent Indonesia is cut off from Marshall Plan funds.

But they have also told the Indonesians to seek loans for specific projects rather than for general purposes. So far, it was learned yesterday, the Indonesians' proposals have not been specific enough to meet Export-Import Bank requirements.

Some Tax Raises, Excise Cut Planned

Senate Action

Basing Price Compromise Rejected

The Senate voted yesterday to ask the House to join in a fresh effort to solve the controversy over legalizing freight absorbtion and uniform delivered prices.

The action was taken by voice vote.

What the Senate did technically was to disapprove a compromise bill worked out by Senate and House Judiciary members in conference during the last session. The House approved the bill last fall but the Senate postponed action until yesterday.

The Senate also voted to ask the House to appoint new conferees.

Less than 20 Senators were on the floor when the disapproval vote was taken.

Senators O'Conor (D., Md.), McCarran (D., Nev.) and Wiley (R., Wis.) were renamed as Senate conferees.

Earlier opponents of the bill had denounced it as a move to wreck the Nation's antitrust laws. Senate Republican Leader Wherry (Nebr.) disagreed and said the legislation would help small businesmen.

Senator Douglas (D., Ill.), former University of Chicago economist and an outspoken foe of the bill, warned that a fresh fight would be made if and when the conferees make their report.

Douglas told the Senate the legislation proposed "will repeal the antitrust laws of the Nation." If it is signed by President Truman "you might as well say goodby to competition in the United States," he said.

The bill provides that "it shall not be an unfair method of competition or an unfair or deceptive act or practice for a seller, acting independently, to quote or sell at delivered prices or to absorb freight."

The bill also provides that a seller may justify a "discrimination by showing that his lower price or the furnishing of services or facilities . . . was made in good faith to meet an equally low price of a competitor."

As it stands the measure forbids the practices when their effect "may be" to interfere with competition and it defines the words "may be" to mean there is "reliable, probative and substantial evidence."

By The Associated Press

President Truman's tax program was reported unofficially yesterday to call for a cut of some 750 million dollars in excise levies, offset by tax increases of something less than $1,750,000,000 on corporations, estates at death, and gifts.

The net increase in taxes thus would be somewhat less than one million dollars.

The program also was said to call for a crackdown on tax dodgers.

The proposals were unveiled privately to Democratic congressional leaders at the White House.

Mr. Truman, in aiming at a revenue increase which he previously told Congress he wanted, would be trying to dent the $5,100,000,000 prospective deficit in spending for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

House Speaker Rayburn, who attended the White House tax conference, told reporters he assumes the tax program is still "subject to change" before it is sent to Congress—probably early next week.

All those attending the conference, including House Democratic Leader McCormack, Chairman Doughton (D., N. C.) and other Democratic House Ways and Means members, promised not to discuss the contents of the tax message until it is transmitted to Congress, Rayburn said.

But from the unofficial information which newsmen were able to gather, indications were the President will recommend:

1. A drop in excise levies imposed during the war on such things as furs, jewelry, luggage, theater admissions, communications and transportation. Probable repeal of the levy on freight hauls was mentioned. Many bills now are pending in Congress calling for lowering excise levies. If they are rolled back to prewar levels it would mean a reduction from 20 percent at retail to 10 percent for many items.

There probably will be no cut in the $9-a-gallon liquor tax.

2. An increase in corporation taxes. The corporate tax now is 38 per cent of net income.

3. Increases in estate and gift taxes.

4. A crackdown on tax-evaders who fail to report all of their income.

5. Clarification of tax laws to close openings which enable some taxpayers to reduce their payments.

Ruml Calls for Excise Repeal Immediately

New York, Jan. 20.—Beardsley Ruml, former chairman of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, declared in a statement tonight that the wartime excise taxes, excepting those on tobacco, gasoline and alcoholic beverages should be repealed at once.

"The net loss of revenue can hardly be more than 1½ billion dollars and it may be somewhat less," his statement said. "Analysis of the facts shows that no new sources of revenue are needed to replace these discriminatory and punitive wartime taxes."

Ruml, after citing the January 8 report of the Committee for Economic Development, declared:

"Employment, business, specific communities and the public generally are being injured and should not be forced to wait a single unnecessary day for wartime excise tax repeal."

Truman Study Urges Foreign Investments

President Truman sent to Congress yesterday a report recommending removal of "tax deterrents" to private investment abroad.

The report and recommendations were given him by the National Advisory Council on International Monetary and Financial Problems. Secretary of the Treasury Snyder heads the council.

Mr. Truman's action was regarded as a hint of one of the changes in tax laws that he will ask of Congress this year. He is working on a special message that will propose general tax changes to bring a "moderate" increase in Government revenue.

Aimed chiefly at stimulating private investment abroad in furtherance of the President's "Point Four" program for aiding development of backward foreign areas, the council's tax recommendations called for:

1. Exempting from United States personal income tax all earnings of United States citizens in foreign lands from the day they become bona fide residents of foreign countries.

2. Postponing—"if practicable"—United States taxation of profits of foreign branches of United States corporations until the branch profits are actually sent to this country.

3. Allowing estate taxes imposed by foreign governments to be taken as a credit against United States estate taxes.

4. Liberalizing present limitations on foreign tax credits allowed to American business "so that increased tax relief would be accorded where foreign operations result in profits in some countries and losses in others."

5. Waiving the present requirement that United States corporations have a majority stock ownership in foreign subsidiaries to be eligible to credit foreign taxes paid by the subsidiaries against United States taxes.

Members of the council in addition to Snyder are Secretaries Acheson (State) and Sawyer (Commerce); Chairman Thomas B. McCabe of the Federal Reserve Board and Herbert E. Gaston of the Export-Import Bank, and Marshall Plan Administrator Paul G. Hoffman.

Broader Aid and Child Benefits Are Asked

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The Administration asked Congress yesterday for increased payments for public assistance and child welfare.

Miss Jane M. Hoey, director of Public Assistance for the Social Security Administration, also recommended that the Federal Government participate in general assistance and aid to the permanently and totally disabled.

Pointing out that unemployment insurance now covers only about two-thirds of the Nation's workers, Miss Hoey declared that if this were extended to more groups as recommended, the "general assistance for persons who are employable would be minimized."

"Similarly," she added, "if old-age and survivors insurance were extended to cover all employed workers for retirement and also permanent and total disability and adequate benefits were provided, the need for assistance would be greatly lessened."

She also recommended increased medical aid for the needy, and the extension of public assistance programs to Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

The maximum payment for a family consisting of two dependent children, a mother and an incapacitated father is now $45 a month, Miss Hoey said. A bill recently pased by the House would add maximum of $27 for the mother. The Administration recommends $50 for each of two persons in a family, and $20 for each person more than two.

The present law for old-age assistance and aid to the blind requires residence in the state for more than five out of the last nine years preceding application.

"Mobility of population is an essential characteristic of a free-enterprise socety," Miss Hoey said. She recommended that the residence provision be reduced to a simple one year residence requirement.

UMW Chiefs Seek Unity From Miners

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

The coal fields yesterday seethed with argument and debate, as John L. Lewis' lieutenants sought to end a "wildcat" strike of 90,000 miners and get them back into the pits next Monday.

The issue—a three-day work week, as proclaimed by Lewis, or the no-day work week, as advocated by the impatient strikers—will be fought out in scores of United Mine Workers locals over the weekend.

Rumors spread through the coal regions yesterday that some of the Northern and Midwestern mine operators would withhold payment of welfare fund royalties, due today, as have a group of Southern producers since last July, when the work contract expired.

Thomas Kennedy, UMW vice president, denounced any such action on the part of coal operators as being an effort to goad the miners into a protest strike—in the face of Lewis' "suggestion" that all diggers get gack to work—in order to pressure President Truman into invoking the Taft-Hartley Act against the miners.

The Senate Labor Committee yesterday invited John L. to testify next Wednesday, if he so desires, on the GOP-sponsored joint resolution urging President Truman to put the Taft-Hartley Act into effect in the coal dispute.

Six Republican Senators took the floor yesterday to demand action by the President. The Senate committee unanimously adopted a resolution asking for $108,000 to investigate effects of the Taft-Hartley Act and other aspects of management-labor relations.

Gov. Luther W. Youngdahl wired President Truman that "the coal shortage in Minnesota is now becoming critical."

At Van Wert, Ohio, John L., aboard a train, was served with 17 summonses in damage suits seeking nearly nine million dollars, filed by mine operators under an Ohio State law. Lewis and the UMW also face damage claims of $947,000 in 20 suits filed in Harlan, Ky., yesterday.

Textile Union Asks Congress To Limit State Injunctions

The CIO Textile Workers yesterday asked Congress to remove from State courts the power to issue injunctions in labor disputes affecting interstate commerce.

In a memorandum sent to every member of Congress, the union said that Federal laws limiting the use of injunctions by Federal courts contained a loophole through which antiunion employers could obtain restraints against strike activities through State court systems.

The Textile Workers said that 13 injunctions had been slapped on locals in their disputes with mill owners in the South in the past several years. As a result of the most recent incident, the union said, eight union members who had picketed a Celanese Corp. mill, were jailed yesterday at Rome, Ga.

The Rome case, the union said, demonstrates "that the antilabor injunction which ostensibly was severely restricted by Congress as far back as 1932, is still a powerful and malignant influence in our industrial society."

The union asked Congress to take some legislative measure to overcome "the present jungle of State statutes, many of which, as in Georgia, place the whole weight of the law on the side of a corporation and against its workers."

Compromise Seen On Draft Extension

Vandenberg May Leave Atomic Unit

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (Mich.), ranking Republican member of the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy, is considering dropping that committee assignment for reasons of health.

It was learned yesterday that he has not yet reached a definite decision. But the predominant opinion among his associates is that he feels he cannot continue with the burden of work and must confine his committee efforts to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Vandenberg, recovering from a lung operation last fall, has not taken an important part in the recent work of the atomic group. Should he resign that committee post, he would be replaced by Senator John W. Bricker (R., Ohio), a former member who lost his place on the committee in the reshuffling following the 1948 Democratic victory in the Senate.

Critic of Lilienthal

When he was on the committee, Bricker was a vigorous critic of David E. Lilienthal, resigning chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission. He was also in the forefront of those fighting for tighter atomic secrecy and security restrictions.

Yesterday morning, the Joint Congressional Committee held an hour-and-a-half secret session with Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staffs, and Robert LeBaron, head of the Atomic Energy Commission's military liaison committe. Although no details of the conference were revealed, it was fairly obvious that the topic had been what is now Washington's most burning question: whether to begin production of a hydrogen bomb.

Senator McMahon (D., Conn.), committee chairman, said after the meeting: "General Bradley and Mr. LeBaron discussed some things pertaining to national defense, including atomic matters."

Thomas Mentions "Morality"

He refused comment when asked if the hydrogen bomb had been a topic. Bradley's present views on the question of whether or not to build the bomb are unknown. But in testimony before Congress last fall, Bradley favored full use, if necessary, of the now-old-fashioned atomic bomb to defend the Nation. He implied other factors overrode any moral objections to a weapon of such mass destruction.

The question of the "morality" of building a hydrogen bomb was mentioned yesterday by Senator Elbert Thomas (D., Utah). He said he considered it morally wrong for the world to try to construct such a colossal killers.

But, he added, "if anybody is going to build a hydrogen bomb, we should build it. We are the only Nation which could build it without freightening the world. It would be safest in our hands, from the world's standpoint."

A compromise draft extension bill was in the making last night, but the Administration and congressional leaders appeared still far apart on what they will accept.

Chairman Carl Vinson (D., Ga.) of the House Armed Services Committee told reporters after a hearing yesterday he favors keeping the selective service system in being, but discontinuing registration, classification and induction of men without congressional action.

Defense Secretary Louis Johnson indicated he would accept a compromise which continued registration and classification but barred any inductions except by passage of a joint resolution by Congress or declaration of a national emergency by the President if Congress were not in session.

Will Confer With Truman

He said he'd take up the question of a compromise with President Truman early next week and report back to the committee by Wednesday. In his formal statement to the group, Johnson called for outright extension of the draft law for another three years.

Vinson and other members of the committee showed strong opposition to any such course, and pointed out that the 1949 Selective Service Act contains other powers than the drafting of men. One gives the President broad powers over industry and another equal authority over the use of steel.

Johnson voted that Congress, not the Defense Department, had sponsored these sections, and indicated he would favor dropping them. He proposed blanket extension of the Draft Act because it seemed the "simplest way." Passage of the law in 1948, Johnson declared, "was one of the decisive factors in stopping the spread of communism in Europe."

Would Weaken U. S. Position

Dropping the draft now, he urged, would have these effects:

1. Weaken our world position and "seriously undermine" the internal position of North Atlantic Pact nations which are also maintaining a draft law "over considerable political opposition."

2. Lose us four precious months in mobilization time in an emergency.

3. Withdraw the present guarantee that the Army will be kept up to strength.

Vinson challenged these arguments. He declared Johnson's budget cuts also weakened our armed forces and hence our world position—a point the Secretary denied.

Matthews' Reply On Denfeld Case Expected Monday

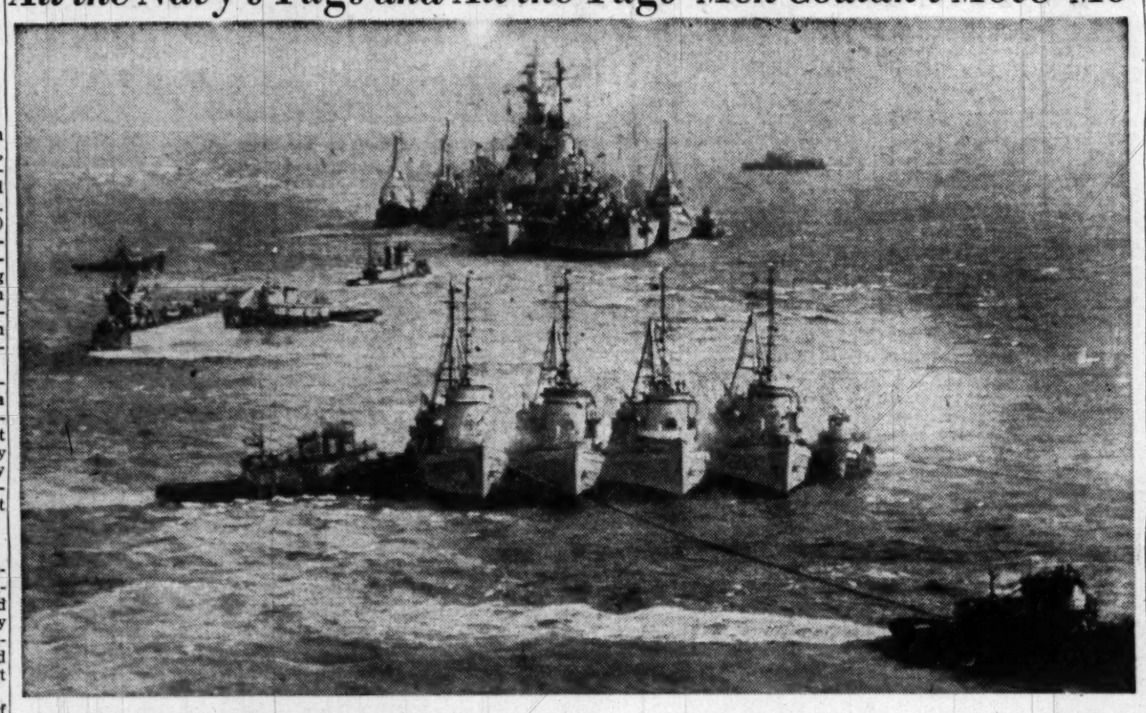
Members of the Senate Armed Services Committee were guests of Defense Secretary Louis Johnson yesterday, but afterward both said the controversial Denfeld case was not discussed.

Republican members have been demanding that Navy Secretary Francis Matthews be recalled for questioning in the ouster of Admiral Louis Denfeld as chief of naval operations.

They called for reopening of the case after Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.) charged that Matthews either was "untruthful" or "incompetent" in testifying that Denfeld never was issued a commission for a second term.

Matthews denied he was "untruthful or an incompetent" and promised a detailed statement explaining the situation. Last night, he announced he'd have the statement ready Monday.

All the Navy's Tugs and All the Tugs' Men Couldn't Move 'Mo'



Associated Press WIREPHOTOS
PART OF ARMADA OF 19 NAVY TUGS STRAINS IN VAIN TO FREE USS MISSOURI FROM MUD FLAT IN HAMPTON ROADS

3d Attempt to Free 'Mo' Fails; Next Try Awaits Feb. 2 Tide

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 20 (AP).—The Navy failed today in its third attempt to pull the battleship Missouri off a Chesapeake Bay shoal.

The 45,000-ton giant resisted for an hour and 38 minutes the combined strength of 19 tugs turning up 40,000 horsepower.

Navy spokesmen announced immediately that no further attempt to free the Missouri will be made until the next favorable tide for such an operation, expected February 2.

In Washington, meanwhile, the Navy ordered a court of inquiry to investigate the grounding of the battleship. Admiral W. H. P. Blandy, Atlantic Fleet Commander, ordered Rear Admiral Allan E. Smith, commanding Cruiser Division Two, to establish the court.

Senior member, of the three-man inquiry board will be Rear Admiral Milton E. Miles, commander of Cruiser Division Four of the Atlantic Fleet.

Desperately snatching at straws, officers directing today's attempts ordered several hundred of the Missouri's crew to run back and forth from port to starboard on the ship's main deck in an effort to set up a rocking motion, and thereby aid in freeing her from the firm grip that holds her captive.

Today's atempt to pull the ship off the shoal began at 10:07 a. m. and was stopped at 11:45 a. m. (EST).

Eight tugs and a heavy-duty salvage vessel had steel cables stretching from their sterns to the Missouri's stern. The other 10 tugs were lashed to the battleship's sides.

Nation Unhurt by DPs, House Committee Finds

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Displaced Europeans admitted into the United States have not affected the Nation's economy nor injected "dangerous or disturbing elements," House investigators reported yesterday.

While reception of these homeless people has generally been good, an immigration subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee found, their geographical distribution was "far from satisfactory." The subcommittee was particularly critical of the screening process which admitted many persons as farmers who had no farm experience.

Chairman Walter (D., Pa.) of the subcommittee told reporters complaints of unsatisfactory performance by displaced persons imported as farmers had come exclusively from Virginia, Maryland and Louisiana. Most of these complaints, he added, were due to so-called farmers deserting their new employers soon after arrival. He attributed this to people of the same nationality urging the DP's to move to another part of the country.

Gov. William Preston Lane of Maryland reported that Maryland had received 2037 DP's, of whom about 20 percent "have either had no agricultural experience whatsoever or else have had a minimum of agricultural background and have shown themselves unwilling to perform agricultural duties." He said the State could absorb no more displaced persons without creating employment competition.

In Virginia, L. M. Walker, jr., Commissioner of Agriculture, was quoted by the Associated Press as relating a similar experience in that State and adding "some of these people are adding something to local life and others are creating a difficulty." He said those who should be "branded as little or no good" comprised about 20 percent of the total but that "the good ones do not make up for the failures of the poor ones." He urged more "teeth" regarding selection in the DP law.

The subcommittee recommended that:

1. Liquidation of the International Refugee Organization take place March 31, 1951, as scheduled.

2. That the United States Government continue to cooperate with the U. N. High Commissioner's Office for Refugees, but that the confidential files of the IRO remain in custody of the United States. This, said Walter, was to prevent retaliation upon relatives of refugees by Iron Curtain countries and kidnaping or liquidation of refugees still in nations under Western control.

3. Extreme care be exercised in selection of the U. N. refugee commissioner and his staff, limiting them to representatives of nations "recognizing and practicing the democratic concept of the right of alylum and protection for victims of totalitarian processes."

Small Loans Of D. C. Banks Up 14 Million

By S. Oliver Goodman

Washington banks, which at one time didn't bother much with consumer loans, are now "sold" on the idea.

This was indicated yesterday in figures showing that the city's 19 banks had $76,638,000 of this type of credit on their books as of December 31. This was an increase of about 14 million dollars over the $62,669,000 at the end of 1948.

Gross loans of the local banks aggregated $287,489,000 as of December 31, a gain of $17,137,000 for the year. Commercial and industrial loans amounted to $93,738,000, off $3,394,000. Real estate loans, however, rose to $98,191,000 from $94,500,000 at the end of 1948.

The figures, released yesterday by the Comptroller of Currency, provided some meat for local bankers to chew on. The fact that commercial loans are now second to real estate loans is an unusual shift. Also, consumer loans are moving up fast and now nearly rival the commercial type. Some changes in departmental manpower and advertising emphasis are likely.

Other highlights of the Comptroller's report:

Securities holdings totaled $534,759,000 at yearend, up 29 million dollars.

Demand deposits aggregated 733,334,000 a gain of about 18 million. Time deposits amounted to $206,305,000, off about 3½ million. Total deposits of $1,037,781 as of December 31, 1949, compared with $1,019,760,000 at the end of 1948.

Capital accounts of $70,762,000 compared with $68,255,000.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Charles P. Kraft has been appointed Washington district freight manager of the United States Lines Co. He is also treasurer of the local unit of the Propeller Club of the United States and served during the war as a lieutenant colonel . . . Robert B. James Eberly has joined the sales engineering staff of the Fred S. Gichner Iron Works, Inc. . . . Douglas S. NEW DIRECTOR: Caldwell C. Kendrick has been elected a director of the Old Dominion Bank in Arlington. He has served for several years as the institution's counsel. President Edwin T. Holland reported a 30 percent increase in deposits last year and "a very good year" from the standpoint of earnings. All officers and directors were reelected.

ODD LOTS: The Suburban Housing Corp. of Washington reported it has received a United States Air Force contract to sponsor a 692-unit housing project at Barksdale Air Force Base at Shreveport, La. . . . Lanston Monotype Machine Co. voted the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share, payable February 28 to stock of record February 17 . . . Chase National Bank has authorized a new program of loan assistance to small business on a nationwide scale with 10 million dollars earmarked as a start . . . Home Building Association has reelected officers and directors and reports assets now total $1,700,000.

STORE SALES: Washington department store sales in the week ended January 14 dropped 5 percent under the same 1949 week, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported yesterday. For the four weeks ended January 14, local sales remained 3 percent higher than in the like period last year. Regionally, store sales in the Fifth Reserve District dropped 6 percent in the latest week and were unchanged for the four-week period.

INNOVATION: Instruction in sales promotion and general retailing will be started in the next semester at American University. This was definitely decided this week at a parley of 25 local business leaders with the faculty of American University's division of business studies, headed by Dr. Nathan Baily. As the first step, an advisory committee will be appointed to guide establishment of the first program in retailing in an area university. Similar courses have proved a success in other regions.

EARNINGS: J. I. Case Co. reported record earnings of $17,607,392 or $19.77 a share for the fiscal year ended October 31, compared with $10,376,888 or $12.47 a share in previous year. Other earnings statements:

Coplon-Gubitchev Trial Set Tuesday

In Senate Group

Anti-Lynch Law Urged By McGrath

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

In accordance with President Truman's civil rights program, the Administration yesterday renewed its demand for a Federal anti-lynching law.

A statement from Attorney General J. Howard McGrath was submitted to a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee by a department aide, Frank Chambers.

"In my opinion the time has come for strengthening the existing law so as to deal adequately with the entire problem of lynching," McGrath said.

Chambers supported a bill introduced by McGrath when he was a Senator from Connecticut, to penalize any member of a lynch mob, any person who incites or otherwise abets a lynching, and any "peace officer" who neglects to protect any person from a lynch mob.

The kidnaping law is amended so as to make punishable the transporting, in interstate or foreign commerce, of persons unlawfully abducted or held because of race, color, religion or national origin.

Two other bills are before the Judiciary Committee. One, introduced by Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.), would permit Federal prosecution in cases where there was a conspiracy between lynch mobs and local peace officers. The other, by Senators Hubert Humphrey (D., Minn.) and Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.), would require governmental subdivisions to pay penalties of $2000 to $10,000 for permitting death or injury of a lynch victim.

Dr. H. M. Griffith, vice president of the National Economic Council, opposed all antilynching bills, saying, "This legislation would be an attempted Federal invasion of rights belonging to the States and local communities under the Constitution."

Joseph B. Robison, American Jewish Congress, said the congress approves of either the McGrath bill or the Humphrey-Morse bill because the Ferguson bill would be "inadequate."

Humphrey told the committee passage of an antilynching law would give the lie to Russian charges the United States pays only "lip service" to civil rights.

New York, Jan. 20 (AP).—Little Judith Coplon and her Russian former friend, Valentin A. Gubitchev, today lost their long-drawn-out fight to escape trial on spy conspiracy charges.

Federal Judge Sylvester J. Ryan ordered the trial to begin next Tuesday. He ruled that the FBI's wire-tapping in the case was illegal, as the defense charged. But he held that the Government has other proof that legally can be used.

The ruling climaxed six weeks of hearings in which the former Government girl and the Soviet engineer, who is suspended from his United Nations job, called scores of witnesses in an effort to get the charges against them dismissed.

Archibald Palmer, Miss Coplon's lawyer, announced immediately that his fight was only beginning.

Defense Motions Denied

Ryan, in his decision, denied a number of defense motions. The most important was a contention that the Government got all its evidence through illegal wire tapping and that this evidence cannot be used in a Federal Court.

Wire tapping, the judge said, "remains unlawful and prohibited" even though it is authorized by the United States Attorney General.

But he added: "The Government has shown to my satisfaction that it does have independent proof of the facts obtained by telephone and microphone interception."

Ryan said much of the Government's non-wire-tap evidence rests on the testimony of William E. Foley, Miss Coplon's former boss in the foreign agents registration section of the Justice Department.

It is for a jury to decide, the judge said, whether Foley is telling the truth.

Foley Told of Plans

Foley testified during the hearings that he told the FBI of Miss Coplon's plans to meet Gubitchev in New York, where the two were arrested after a frantic chase last March 4. The defense says the FBI learned of Miss Coplon's plans by tapping her phone wires.

Ryan ruled also that Harold P. Shapiro, the Justice Department lawyer with whom Miss Coplon admittedly spent two nights in hotels last January, may be called as a witness in the trial "if it is deemed necessary." Miss Coplon has denied any intimacies with Shapiro.

Shapiro did not testify in Miss Coplon's previous trial, which resulted in her conviction on charges of stealing secret Government papers for the Russians. She was sentenced to 40 month to 10 years but is free in bail pending appeal.

Police Seize 6 In Gem Holdup Of Aga Khan

Paris, Jan. 20 (AP).—Five gangsters who seized up to $800,000 in gems from the Aga Khan and his wife in a roadside holdup on the Riviera last August have been arrested, French police said today.

Held also is an Englishman booked as Watson Lindsay, former Foreign Legionnaire. Police said they were investigating a possibility he instigated the robbery.

But the glittering loot still was missing.

One member of the gang, an ex-convict identified as the leader, and his girl friend were reported dead. Police said they may have been taken for a ride by the others.

However, the bodies have not been found and Marseille officers are not certain the man is dead. They say he may have been in Marseille recently to try to dispose of the gems.

A nation-wide alarm has been sounded for the other three.

They are believed to have the gold and platinum bracelets, rings, clips and other jewels taken at gunpoint from the Aga Khan, wealthy Moslem leader, and his wife, the Begum.

Investigators identified the couple reported slain as Roger Senanedj, who provided the automobile for the stickup, and his mistress, Renee Remy.

The jewels were reported to have been buried after the holdup in the garden of a villa adjoining the Aga Khan's almost within a stone's throw of the holdup.

Officers said the villa was owned by Loen Jolivet, 42, one of the prisoners. The others arrested were identified as Francois Sanna, 48, a Corsican; Barthelemy Ruberti, 38; Paul Mondolini, 31, and Jacques Benedetti, 42.

Police said they suspected Senanedj after they got hold of the stickup car and traced its battery to the garageman who sold it. His description of the driver corresponded to that of Senanedj, who had served seven prison terms.

Trash Fire Routs Five From Residence

A trash fire which started in the basement of a house of 6706 5th st. nw. yesterday routed five persons from the house but caused no injuries.

The fire was discovered by Mr. and Mrs. Howard Stackhouse, residents there. Together with Mrs. Stackhouse's mother, Mrs. Cora Akehurst, and two second-floor tenants, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dunbebin, they fled from the two-story frame dwelling.

Eight pieces of apparatus answered the fire call. Damage was confined largely to the basement, although the first floor of the house had some water damage, Fire Department ment said.

32 in U. S. Die In 24-Hour Wave of Fires

Chicago, Jan. 20 (U.P.).—Thirty-two persons, more than half of them children and teen-agers, were killed in the last 24 hours in home and industrial fires over the Nation.

In Canada, five persons were killed and seven injured when fire swept a garment factory at Toronto.

Many of the fires flashed out from stoves fired up against cold weather.

Among victims were three small children who perished in their two-room home at Sedro Woolley, Wash., while their mother was away. An overheated stove was blamed.

The greatest loss of life was at Woodstock, Ill., where a family of five perished in a stove explosion and flames.

At Jersey City, N. J., a mother and her three children were killed in a tenement house fire which started with an explosion in a kerosene stove.

Minnesota counted five dead, including three children, while a farm home fire at Lapanto, Ark., killed three and a Windsor, Conn., home fire claimed three more lives.

Roth was arrested by railroad police in the Benning yards here when he was found in a freight car which he is reported to have entered on Thursday at Harrisburg, Pa. Police reported he was trying to reach Florida to join a circus. He told Judge Kronheim in court that he would not repeat the offense.

School Squabble

Personal differences, rather than any questions of policy, seem to lie behind the unfortunate conflict that has developed between the superintendent of schools and the Board of Education over the choice of a principal for the new Sousa Junior High School. Superintendent Corning has recommended for the post Miss Eleanor McAuliffe whose qualifications appear to be indisputable. A majority of the board has rejected this nomination, although paying tribute to her record as a teacher and an assistant principal, simply because, according to Board President C. Melvin Sharpe, they favor another candidate.

The proper function of a Board of Education is to determine broad questions of policy. Detailed administration of a school system is outside the competency of such a body; it is properly left to a superintendent chosen by the board and then accorded authority commensurate with the responsibilities entrusted to him. The selection of professional personnel within the school system is plainly an administrative matter, and we quite agree with the American Association of School Administrators that intervention of this sort by a board of education constitutes "a threat to the educational standards of local schools."

Members of the Board of Education are not professional educators, and they are not able to devote their attention exclusively to educational problems. Their position in relation to the superintendent is very much the same as the position of a board of trustees in relation to a university president. They owe him a free hand in matters of personnel and administration. Indeed, they cannot fetter him in these matters without injecting political and other nonprofessional considerations into the management of school affairs. The end of such interference is bound to be an impairment of the caliber of teaching in the school system.

Return Of The Saar

Look at some of the news headlines of today, and you will find they are precisely the same that topped dispatches between wars. At the moment the Saar is a major illustration. Collaborationist talks between Robert Schuman, France's Foreign Minister, and Konrad Adenauer, West Germany's Chancellor, have apparently hit a snag over the Saar's future. The Saar is the coal and steel producing territory on the French-German border that after the First World War was put under a League of Nations mandate. After a lot of internal dissension, the Saarlanders in 1934 voted to join Germany, and with Germany they marched to war in 1939. After the second war the area was again detached, and though given its independence, was united economically to France, as well as in defense and foreign affairs. Status is to be clarified when peace with Germany has been formally achieved. In the meantime the charges are coming out of Germany which Dr. Adenauer expressed to Mr. Schuman—that the French are going ahead too fast with the economic integration of the Saar.

The details of the squabble are not half so important as this evidence of the return to old nationalistic issues between France and Germany. The Saar is only an item in the bigger issue of the future of the whole coal and iron complex in west Europe. Internationalization is our prescription, and Adenauer and Schuman seem ideal spokesmen for such an enterprise. Both are Rhinelanders, both good Europeans, both personal friends, both proponents of a European orientation. Two months ago Chancellor Adenauer declared in Die Zeit, "I must direct all my energies toward a Franco-German understanding. The establishment of friendship with France demands the greatest effort because up to now it has been strongly shackled. Friendship with France must be a pivot of our policy because it is the sensitive point." The way to retard any rapprochement is to stop thinking of the common interest and to begin on particular issues which could be settled automatically in a bigger settlement. In other words, the subject should be the incorporation of the entire industrial belt, Ruhr and Saar, in a joint undertaking.

But, since this particular issue has been raised, Secretary Acheson felt called upon to explain American policy toward it. There has never been any qualification about where this country stands. Secretary Byrnes in his September 6, 1946, speech at Stuttgart said:

> The United States does not feel that it can deny to France, which has been invaded three times by Germany in 70 years, its claim to the Saar territory whose economy has long been closely linked with France. Of course, if the Saar territory is integrated with France, she should readjust her reparation claims against Germany.

It is clear from this that the United States supports France's claim to the Saar, politically as well as economically. This is not a warrant for absorption. Disposition will come in connection with the peace treaty, but when the question comes up for final definition, the United States will side with France. Secretary Acheson's statement at his press conference was a restatement of this policy, though it could not, of course, prejudge the final settlement. Messrs. Adenauer and Schuman, we hope, will not be sidetracked from pursuing an all-in rapprochement; they will never get anywhere by barking up prewar trees of Franco-German fears and difficulties.

Suppressed Revolt

The House yesterday turned back one of the greatest threats to popular government that has arisen in recent years. The issue before it was not, of course, the fair employment practices bill or any other specific piece of legislation. It was nothing less than whether the House shall continue to function as a legislative body responsive to the will of the people. Representative Cox and his followers were brazenly bidding for restoration of a rule that would have given seven men (a majority of the Rules Committee) power to prevent the House from acting on bills favored by its standing legislative committees. Such a throwback to oligarchy would have sent severe repercussions throughout the democratic world.

While the House is entitled to hearty congratulations, we do not think that the outcome affords any ground for complacency. The strength of the forces that are trying to restore dictatorial powers to the Rules Committee was divided. Many Republicans who would like to see the Rules Committee used as a roadblock to the Truman program were afraid to vote for the Cox resolution yesterday because it would have resulted in blocking the FEPC bill to which they are committed. If the showdown could have been postponed another week, the result might have been different. In any event, the threat to sound democratic procedure ought to awaken Administration forces to the precariousness of the position they occupy on Capitol Hill.

This revolt came straight from the Rules Committee, composed of eight Democrats and four Republicans, which is supposed to facilitate the movement of legislation through the House. Now that the committee has been rebuked, what will the House leadership do next? Will it merely wait for the Rules Committee to lead another revolt at a more favorable moment? It is true, of course, that the defeat of the Cox resolution leaves the 21-day rule in effect. Committee chairmen can go to the floor and appeal to the whole House if the Rules Committee continues to bottle up measures that have the approval of a legislative committee. But it is an invitation to further trouble to leave the Rules Committee as a convenient nucleus for revolt.

We have already suggested that the nature of the committee be changed—that its majority members be elected by the majority party on nomination of the House leaders. If the committee is to serve its function as a director of the business to go before the House, we think it will have to be tied closer to the House leadership.

It would be a mistake to suppose, moreover, that this revolt was merely aimed at restoration of an undemocratic rule. We suspect that many of those who voted for the Cox resolution did so in protest against the minor influence that the House has upon shaping a legislative program. For the most part the President sends down his measures and asks the House to approve them even though its leaders may have had no opportunity to influence the character of those measures or to shape a general party program. Party responsibility calls for party councils. The House naturally wishes to feel that it is an integral part of the system through which policy is made. If it is going to be treated as a rubber stamp, the demand for power to block the Administration, through the Rules Committee or otherwise, is certain to rise again.

In other words, the present victory is likely to be of very brief significance, unless the leadership of the House is better organized to do for itself the steering job that the Rules Committee has sought to usurp.

Million-Dollar Holdup

The robbery of a cold million dollars in cash from the Boston headquarters of Brink's Express Co.—a place resembling a fortress, equipped with every kind of alarm device, garrisoned by armed guards—was certainly the most audacious and ingenious exploit in all the history of American crime. Beside it, the deeds of the James gang or the Younger gang seem primitive, and those of Dillinger and Pretty Boy Floyd merely savage.

Shocking and scandalous as it is, the operation at Boston was conceived and plotted to the most minute detail and executed with precision and efficiency. Whoever planned it—and it is impossible to suppose that the plan was the work of more than one mind—is obviously possessed of some military genius. And doubtless the escape, an even more difficult operation than the actual robbery, was plotted with the same meticulousness.

It is obvious that at least one person concerned in the robbery had an intimate knowledge of the building. That could have been derived only from firsthand experience. It is equally obvious that someone at some time associated with the company must have supplied the model or the impression from which the passkeys were made—keys that enabled the bandits to pass through the succession of doors leading to the counting room where the money was seized. Hence the suspicion of internal collusion. The other possibility is that someone actually entered the employ of the company for the single purpose of studying its arrangements and methods, or, as the underworld argot has it, of "casing the job." Thus one weak factor in the elaborate system used by the company in protecting the funds entrusted to it may have been a rapid turnover of employment.

Another testimony to the meticulous planning is the paucity of clews. One of the bandits left behind a chauffeur's cap he was wearing. The serial numbers of some of the Federal Reserve notes included in the loot are known. Several money bags have been found. But more valuable to the police than any of these may be the $500,000 in checks seized along with the money. Evidently the bandits could not take time to separate the checks from the cash. The checks are hardly negotiable, and are therefore worthless to the criminals; yet they are at once dangerous to keep and difficult to dispose of. It might take a good deal of time that the fugitives can hardly spare to separate the checks from the cash and to destroy them without trace. They may prove to be the one unforeseen factor in an otherwise perfect plan.

Meanwhile, the enormous rewards that have already been posted—the Brink's Co. is offering $100,000, and one of the insurance companies 5 percent of all funds recovered—have probably set loose the greatest manhunt ever heard of. But since nobody yet seems to know for whom to hunt there is danger that the multitudes of official and unofficial investigators at work on the case will get into one another's way.

Ultimatum To Bulgaria

Bulgaria's demand for the immediate recall of Donald R. Heath, United States Minister to that country, is the latest of a series of studied insults that have brought unavailing protests from the State Department. False charges of espionage have been preferred against our representatives; their freedom to travel has been restricted; they have been subjected to all sorts of annoyances and inconveniences; and Bulgarians employed by the American Legation have been intimidated, persecuted, even tortured by the police.

Our patience in the face of such provocation cannot be interpreted as a sign of weakness. The United States has been governed by considerations of self-interest in refraining from drastic action in order to maintain direct communication with Bulgaria. But as the State Department points out in its ultimatum, it has now become "virtually impossible for the legation to perform its normal diplomatic and consular functions." Under such conditions, patience ceases to be rewarded and the purpose of maintaining diplomatic relations is defeated. Consequently, the State Department has informed the Bulgarian government that it intends to sever diplomatic relations unless the request for the recall of our envoy is withdrawn.

If diplomatic relations are broken off, it will not be in reprisal for the indignities suffered by Americans at the hands of Bulgaria. Nor should it be regarded as a means of expressing disapproval of the Bulgarian form of government. It will simply be the logical result of the refusal of Bulgaria to observe the standards of conduct expected of civilized nations in their dealings with one another. Incidentally, the note to Bulgaria is a warning to other countries behind the Iron Curtain to cease hounding our citizens and harrying our representatives, if they wish to maintain diplomatic relations with the United States.

Sesqui Design

It is immensely heartening to learn that Carter Barron, executive vice chairman of the Sesquicentennial Commission, is going to discuss a suggestion by the American Institute of Architects to scrap the "U. S. A." building plan and hold a Nation-wide design competition. A design competition is certain to produce ideas more suitable to the significance of the occasion and the dignity of the National Capital.

The notion of arranging the Sesqui buildings in the shape of the letters U. S. A. is a publicity stunt—and a rather shoddy one at that. It has about as much esthetic merit as the notion of painting the White House red, white and blue or rebuilding the Capitol to look like an American flag. And apart from esthetics, it is a wasteful, costly, inefficient design. Washington is one of the most beautiful cities in the world. It is now 150 years old. Let us aim, in celebrating its sesquicentennial, at something more than calendar art and chauvinism.

THIS YEAR

There are many thing that are slow and inexorable.
There is lava, there is the tide, there is the earth's cycle,
But none are more patiently relentless than the growth of conflict.

The slow and beautiful days come and are gone,
In the night hours we grope, wordless, for one another,
The warm, impatient flesh, the contactual comfort,
And beneath our eyelids we see the cities burning.

By sunlight it is not gone, but less immediate.
Only the sky too blue, the trees too white,
The year too beautiful.

"Chest Money"

Three cheers for your forthright January 18 editorial on community welfare needs and Community Chest goals. As one who for 20 years has fought for a goal representing the budget committee findings of minimum agency needs, I say bottoms up to you. May your position prevail.

I think analysis will show the chief responsibility for failure to reach such a goal resides in the disinterestedness of some 70,000 "small business" employes to subscribe. Here's where a year-round educational job could well pay off big dividends. An average gift of $7 from this source would bring in another half million dollars. Keep up the fight.

"Throw It Out"

Your January 16 "Throw It Out" is to be commended for its simplicity and forthrightness. Furthermore, you deserve the thanks of a large segment of your readers for the stand which you have repeatedly taken against the intolerable nuisance of the radio broadcasting in the buses and streetcars of the Capital Transit Co.

Please continue your campaign to release the captive audiences from their agonizing imprisonment until these vehicles of our public transportation system are once more fit to be used by people who have a decent regard for the personal rights of every passenger, including their own.

Indian Head Highway

The opening of South Capitol st. bridge caused the writer to look over old files of the former Winthrop-Indian Head-Washington Military Highway Association, of which he happened to have been the secretary-treasurer from 1914 to 1920. We had advocated the action of the proposed military highway. The Maryland State Roads Commission had definitely declined to place this route on the Maryland State road map for future construction, contending that the many Government reservations and activities served thereby made it a project for a congressional appropriation.

When the congressional bills and indorsements came before Gen. N. M. Black, Chief of Engineers, for his ruling, it was decided the route did not have sufficient military importance to have the Navy and War Departments, ask Congress for its construction. The highway association was forced to concentrate on the Maryland State Road Commission and successfully secured the construction of the highway in question.

The decision of General Black was reversed during the Second World War and the Maryland State Road Commission may not have been so far wrong in its premises, for as a military necessity, the old No. 224 to Indian Head has been displaced by a modern, limited access highway, constructed by the Federal Public Roads Administration. A section of this new highway is to be a dual highway, to eventually extend to intersect with the Morgantown Bridge Crain Highway at La Plata, Md. The present Indian Head Highway will then be a part of an important trunk route to the South and the South Capitol st. bridge will give this southern approach the best Maryland entrance to the Nation's Capital.

A & P Advertisements

After seeing the full-page whimperings of the A & P advertisements and their massive window paste-ups it seemed at first hard to believe that the president of this great company felt compelled to ask for more time when called upon by Senator Gillette of the price-probing Senate Agriculture Subcommittee. I could understand how Senator Gillette could be shocked at the news that the president of the company or his assistants "could not inform the committee of the prices they were charging for coffee, the prices paid for coffee in the growing countries and their markup without any great amount of preparation."

One can but wonder whether this delay might not have been obviated if the same amount of energy had been devoted to the gathering of the requested data as was apparently devoted to the advertisements which I believe have been characterized as false and misleading by certain small businessmen and by the Attorney General. Venerians

In your editor's note to my January 8 letter on the inhabitants of Venus, you call my attention to the fact that Webster's International Dictionary (second edition) defines "Venusian" as "pertaining to the planet Venus."

I imagine that the dictionary included that word because of current usage, without considering its validity. It is true that "Venusian" does now refer to an inhabitant of Venus, because a large number of people have used it so. However, the word "Venerian," in some respects at least, has prior claim for usage, and is more correct from the standpoint of derivation. "Venerian" was used earlier by science-fiction authors, then suffered the fate of being changed by certain editors because of "unfortunate connotations." Venusian is, however, ugly and clumsy in comparison with Venerian.

It is unfortunate that a number of words in English derived from the stem vener do have unpleasant connotations. Venus was the goddess of love and beauty, while Cupid or Eros was the god of sexual love. Hence, there is no reason why any particular word derived from Venus should have unpleasant connotations. I, for one, see no difficulty in distinguishing between venerean, venereal, and Venerian!

Making Home Ownership Sound

Malvina Lindsay's column of January 11, "Deeper Roots for Americans," presented a smart case for home ownership. Yet, if in the early years of the New Deal she had asked the Does "who owned homes" or thought they did, 1,600,000 would have told her that between 1929 and 1936 foreclosures had ended their dreams of owning a home. Another million Does would have told her that but for the help of the Home Owners Loan Corp., they would have been in the same boat. It would seem, despite pending legislation in behalf of the "moderate-income" group, that our outmoded FHA, and home mortgage structure still will make such opportunity of enlarging the "cornerstone of our American way of life" an extra hazardous speculation for the Does.

To firmly ground these homes some consideration should be given at the hearings on the moderate housing bill to preserving the Does against loss as well as preserving the mortgage lenders. It should be the main concern of these legislators to make home ownership sound at its inception, to afford protection against fortuitous defaults, and to preserve the equity values of would-be homeowners.

The Federal insuring agencies should not be a virtual party to a conspiracy to keep interest rates high. Nor should they support the purchase of homes costing as much as four times the purchaser's annual income. If also in these setups a permanent revolving fund would be created to succor owners in temporary distress at a small premium to owners wishing protection and a mutual arrangement created to preserve the equities of owners in permanent distress, the taxpayer would not be at a disadvantage in finding justification for their continuance. The pending Sparkman bill with its cooperative and direct Government financing features provides the possibility of an arrangement to preserve the owner's equity and to make home ownership more flexible.

In recent surveys of the moderate income group in Detroit by the Detroit Housing Association, in Chicago by Coleman Woodbury, professor of housing in the University of Wisconsin, and in 90 representative cities by Crossley, Inc., about 35 percent of the cases surveyed preferred renting to ownership. Fourteen percent of these cases were owners who admitted a desire to sell and become tenants. Among the reasons for this preference, first rank was given to the economy of renting. Almost equal importance was given to the greater freedom and mobility of renting. Closely related to this same reason was that of the fixity of investment in the home and the difficulty of realizing on the investment.

One must conclude that home-ownership is impractical for a very large number of our population; and that renting is as essential to the requirement of the Does as home ownership is to the emotional security of the Does. This conclusion is underlined by the mobility of industry as contrasted with the fixed nature of home ownership. Until such time as home ownership can be made more flexible, renting is perhaps the only practical way in which shelter prudently can follow in the wake of industry. More flexibility could be provided by protecting the owner against loss of equity by uniform laws relieving the Does of personal liability on their bond or note and by a "clearing house" of available homes that would help dispose of home-ownership equity without loss.

Defenses For Longevity

By Malvina Lindsay

Pursuit of Youth

THERE ARE no Old Ladies any more, and the dowager is the copyrighted property of the cartoonist. Gray templed "men of distinction" show up occasionally, but grandfathers with white beards, never.

So one would gather from present events celebrating a half century's development of the American fashion industry, one of the country's economic Big Four. Yet a congressional committee in its hearings on a social security bill is every day reminded of the growing proportion of elderly and aged in the Nation's population.

These potential pension candidates are to a large extent in disguise. For in the last 50 years the increasing pursuit of youth has been a dominating influence in the apparel industry. This is evidenced in the fashion showings, museum presentations and other "looking backward" events the fashion world is now holding as it steps into the spring spotlight.

Women's clothes make the most obvious defy to time. The hemline, continuing its dogged resistance to gravity of the last 30 years, is again rising. Simplicity and casualness (another way of saying youth) seem to be winning another perennial battle with ruffles and yardage.

BUT MEN also are continuing their steady march away from their stuffed shirt status of the 1890s, away from formality and dignity in attire to the casual and sports garments that suggest youth. They have gone into color in a way that would have astonished a turn-of-the-century haberdasher. And designers who are experimenting with new types of fashions for men predict the next half century will bring many daring changes in masculine apparel. Who can doubt these will be on the side of youth?

The cosmetic industry, beauty shops, Turkish baths, gymnasium, reducing salons also testify to this breathless pursuit of youth. And so do psychologists, some of whom are concerned about this country's over-emphasis on callowness. Teenagers, it is charged, are determing not only our fashions but our culture. Size 14, or even 12, has become the goal of American women, not only in their physical, but their mental proportions.

DR. MIRIAM C. GOULD, an editor of the Bulletin of the International Council of Women Psychologists, recently told a group of New York women that their sex was overly concerned about keeping its looks and was not willing to accept the facts of physical change. Dr. George Lawton, author of Aging Successfully, said many women tried too hard to keep their good looks but not enough to keep their good sense. Other psychologists warned of the strain many women were undergoing in their efforts to defy time.

Since clothes and grooming are generally accepted means of doing this, and since these are more complicated for women than for men, the modern woman frequently carries in her load of fine feathers an old man of the sea.

THE PURSUIT of youth is as old as time, and most human beings pursue it with some relish. But foreign visitors frequently marvel at the extent to which it is carried in this country. Why should that be? And why should the last 50 years have seen its greatest development?

A young pioneer country, where physical strength is needed, usually puts a premium on youth. But the refusal to get old—at least to look old—has developed probably as a sideline to industrial life and the trek to cities. More means for defeating and disguising age have been provided by the machine, and more competition for jobs, husbands, social prestige has made them seem necessary.

Now another element is added—longevity. This makes it necessary for many persons to exercise their earning power longer. Women so far have been the chief devotees of the youth cult, but men as well are finding that they can no longer be careless about their girth, chins, teeth grooming and expect employers to look on them with the same favor a young woman in the market for a steak dinner does.

Whatever the strain, men and women of the next 50 years are likely to pursue youth with continued avidity. But they will need more basic equipment in their race with time than clothes and cosmetics. They will need to build bodies and minds that can be kept strong and flexible as long as possible.

No Veterans' Bonus

Recent statements by responsible congressional leaders concerning possible Federal bonus legislation for World War II veterans in this session of Congress must be disheartening to the responsible and thinking citizenry.

Apart from the disastrous and inflationary effect that such a program would entail on our economy, the moral ground on which we stand would face a severe test.

The men who fought for an ultimately greater and more democratic America do not desire a "pork barrel grab" that will debilitate our economy as well as besmirch our ideals.

Let us devote our efforts to the more important issues of civil rights, socialized medicine and full employment for all.

FEPC Compromise

By Marquis Childs

Middle Road To Civil Rights

AGAIN AND again in the recent past a combination of Republicans and Southern Democrats has effectively blocked social and economic legislation. That same combination has just barely missed putting back the rule that made the House Rules Committee a narrow gate holding back any legislation the combine did not want.

Childs

This system had some cynical advantages. It saved members of the House who might otherwise be put on the spot the embarrassment of having to vote on highly controversial issues. It also, on the credit side, tended to restrain men such as Representative John Rankin of Mississippi, who is fond of proposing billions in new pensions for veterans.

The recent move to restore the old roadblock appears to have been aimed at President Truman's civil rights legislation. If those highly controversial measures can be kept from debate and a vote, then a lot of unhappiness will be avoided.

But obviously this technique implies a fear and distrust of the democratic process. It is, in fact, undemocratic. And that becomes all the more obvious when it is realized that there is an alternative to the President's proposals, and that alternative has considerable support in the South.

THE ALL-OUT adherents of the Administration's fair employment practices law will, of course, denounce the substitute put forward by Representative Brooks Hays of Arkansas as milk and water. Hays does not provide powers of punishment to be directed by the Federal Government against those who discriminate for reasons of race, color or creed in hiring and firing.

The Hays substitute would set up a Minorities Employment Bureau in the Department of Labor. This bureau would be authorized to set up local, State and regional advisory councils to aid in carrying out a policy of nondiscrimination.

In other words, the reliance would be on education and persuasion. Any fair-minded person must admit to doubt as to whether prejudice can be legislated away by punitive powers exercised by the long arm of the Federal Government. On the other hand, we have let this matter of prejudice fester for a long time and the process of education is slow. One of the chief arguments for the Administration measure is that without a stick behind the door there will be no progress.

Eleven States now have fair employment practice laws of one kind or another. As has been aptly said, the States are laboratories for testing legislation. It would seem to me that a wise preliminary move would be to canvass carefully the results that have been achieved. From what I have been able to learn, those States that have the power to punish employers have not used the punitive provisions.

Why is that so? Has any substantial progress been made in breaking down prejudice in employment? The answers to these and a number of related questions should be helpful to Congress.

REPRESENTATIVE Hays also has a substitute antilynching bill. It provides that where both the community and the State fail to take action when a lynching has occurred, Federal officials may go before a Federal judge and argue that the State has failed in its duty. If the judge finds this is true, then the Federal Government would take jursdiction with authority to apprehend and try the lynchers.

It seems to me that these are both valid compromises that an honest man could vote for without any suspicion of evasion or face-saving. They both recognize that the power of law is limited, a lesson this country should have learned through the tragic experiment of prohibition when alcohol was presumably legislated out of existence.

Changes are coming very fast and traditional patterns are being swftly altered. An important case is soon to be heard by the Supreme Court involving a charge brought by Elmer W. Henderson, a Negro employe of the President's wartime Fair Employment Practices Committee. Traveling in the South on official business, Henderson was denied a place in a dining car because the table ordinarily reserved for Negroes was occupied by white passengers.

Solicitor General Philip B. Perlman has filed an extraordinary brief in which he attacks the whole concept of "separate but equal" facilities that has prevailed with considerable sanction from the courts. The very idea of separate facilities or separate rights, the brief says, is in itself a negation of the full and complete possession of privileges and immunities of citizenship.

The tides of change can never be halted by a flat refusal to admit that they exist. But they can be channeled in such a way as to bring acceptance by almost everyone and acceptance can mean progress and a lessening of harmful tensions.

7 Bulgarian Reds Lose Party Posts

London, Jan. 20 (U.P.).—The Bulgarian Communist Party leadership was reshuffled today in the midst of an American-Bulgarian diplomatic crisis. One Politbureau members and six party central committee members were "dropped" from their party posts.

Two of the men ousted from the central committee also were dropped from cabinet posts in yesterday's government shakeup. Tass news agency reported a third cabinet minister had been dismissed and "arrested for treason."

The reshuffle, apparently a result of "Titoism" among party leaders, was announced one day after Bulgaria demanded the recall of United States Minister Donald R. Heath.

charged, "the Bulgarian government has pursued a campaign of persecution against the Legation's Bulgarian employes whose only crime has been their association with the legation.

"This campaign has resulted in the execution of two such employes, the death of a third after maltreatment by the police, and the arrest and torture of others. All of these employes were engaged only in such routine duties as are accepted as normal practice in diplomatic missions throughout the world."

Although the note did not say so, Heath himself and his American staff have been denied gasoline and other facilities for moving freely, and have found it almost impossible to get decent housing space for themselves and their families.

Probably no Americans anywhere in Soviet Europe have been up against the difficulties that have mounted against Heath and his staff since they opened the legation two years ago. Officials said yesterday that other Communist governments had not gone to such extremes but were beginning to follow the Bulgarian example.

In Hungary the American Minister, Selden Chapin, had to be recalled because of charges that he was in contact with Cardinal Mindszenty, convicted of "treason." In Romania the American minister and his staff are restricted to Bucharest, the capital, and to one or two health resorts outside it.

In Czechoslovakia Samuel Meryn, an embassy clerk, was jailed last fall, and the embassy staff at Prague is finding itself increasingly cut off from normal contacts.

Officials here hope yesterday's stand toward Bulgaria may at least persuade other Communist governments to check what appears to be a developing campaign against foreigners in general and Americans in particular.

The trouble with Bulgaria has been developing almost from the moment Heath took up his duties in Sofia. In 1948 Donald F. Ewing, the American vice consul, was expelled, and last year Heath's name was cited repeatedly in the "treason" trial of Traicho Kostov, the former deputy premier, convicted and executed in December.

In addition, the United States has accused Bulgaria repeatedly of violating the human rights provisions of the peace treaty of 1946. But this was not mentioned in yesterday's American note, which simply said the Bulgarian government has "fallen far below even the minimum standards in conducting its relations with the United States."

"Accordingly," the note concluded "unless the Bulgarian government withdraws its note of January 19 and demonstrates its willingness to observe established international standards of conduct, the United States Government must conclude that the Bulgarian government does not desire to maintain normal relations."

The United States has a staff of 18 in Sofia, including three career officials of the Foreign Service. The Bulgarian Legation staff here consists of Voutov and his wife and Vice Consul Tzeko Etropolsky.

Lie Sees U. N. at Lowest Point, But Says Soviets Will Return

Lake Success, Jan. 20 (AP).—Trygve Lie today said the Russian walkout-strike against Nationalist China has plunged the United Nations into the gravest crisis in its five-year history. But he expressed confidence the Russians would walk back in again some day and the United Nations would regain full prestige.

The Secretary-General said he does not consider the Soviet Union out of the United Nations simply because its delegates have walked out of or boycotted nine U.N. organs.

The Russians and their satellites have quit U.N. meetings here, in New York and in Geneva because other delegates would not oust the Nationalists.

A cablegram from Chou En-lai, Foreign Minister of Red China, today notified the United Nations the Communists have appointed Chang Wen-tien chairman of their delegation to the United Nations and asked how long the United Nations would delay tossing out the "Kuomintang (Nationalist China) clique."

Lie later cabled Chou each U.N. body will have to decide on how China will be represented in the United Nations.

Aid for Korea Being Studied in it: (1) Republican anger at the Administration's Far Eastern policies, especially over Formosa; (2) economy sentiment among Republicans and Democrats alike; and (3) the dislike of the House leadership for tackling foreign aid authorizations in bits and pieces.

House leaders have repeatedly made known their preference for "single package" bills for foreign aid. They forced the original ECA act into a "single package" and yesterday there was a belief among House Democrats that the Korea fund would have passed if it had been part of an omnibus measure.

Martin Replies to Democrats

Some Democrats accused the Republicans of playing "economy politics" in an election year. But Republican leader Joseph W. Martin, jr. (Mass.) retorted that he thought the vote reflected "resentment at the Administration's abandonment of China and Formosa."

Meanwhile, officials hurried into print with assurances, intended chiefly for foreign consumption, that the House action was not final and that the United States did not intend to abandon Korea to the Communists.

At the State Department, Press Officer Michael J. McDermott said: "The Department has not given up "the idea of a program to aid Korea, and believes we will get a Korean aid program through Congress."

Economic Cooperation Administrator Paul Hoffman said he hoped the State Department would "find ways to continue the Korean Recovery Program until Congress can review the program on its merits."

"In Korea," said Hoffman, "we have had dramatic proof of the adequacy of Marshall Plan methods in bringing about recovery and building up hope and confidence in democratic methods."

Hoffman talked to reporters after seeing the Korean Ambassador, John Myun Chang, who was agitated at what the House had done. The Ambassador said it would be "very difficult" to keep Korea from falling into Communist hands if American aid were stopped.

Bill Defeat Baffling To South Koreans

Seoul, Korea, Jan. 20 (AP).—South Koreans, who consider themselves a safe bet against communism, are baffled at congressional rejection of further aid for this American-sponsored republic.

President Syngman Rhee, acknowledging surprise at yesterday's action in the House of Representatives, told a news conference he was confident that the United States "upon further and more careful reflection will not fail to grant Korea this aid."

Rhee asserted, "some Asiatic nations waver; some recoil in fear; one great nation has gone down in defeat; but the Korean Republic continues to resist and fight with unflagging determination, courage and success."

Rhee said those who considered aid for Korea as "water down some rat-hole," should "remember Berlin."

thought I was sleepy," the witness replied.

Carey then asked Robertson if he had signed "of your own free will" a statement admitting the numbers slips were his.

"I signed my name to it," Robertson answered, "but I won't say it was of my own free will. My better judgment was I didn't want to sign it. I've been thinking it over and I've been thinking I was too hasty about it."

Lewis, alleged chief of a 14-million-dollar-a-year gambling syndicate, Attilio Acalotti, the self-styled "Mayor of Thomas Circle," and Frank Billeci, circulation man for the Washington Times-Herald, are on trial in District Court, charged with operating a numbers lottery. They face maximum sentences of three years in jail.

The Government expects to rest its case Monday.

Robertson was arrested Tuesday by FBI agents, Carey said after the trial adjourned, on a fugitive warrant from Pennsylvania where he is wanted for violation of the Selective Service Act. He turned over a numbers book to the agents voluntarily at that time, Carey said.

Judge Holtzoff threatened to clear the courtroom at one time when Robertson's answers brought howls of amusement from the spectators.

"Looks Like a Movie Star"

Asked by Charles E. Ford, attorney for Acalotti, if he could identify Downey Rice, special consultant to U. S. Attorney George Morris Fay, as one of those who had questioned him since his arrest, Robertson broke into a wide grin and said:

"Oh, yes. I remember him very much. He looks like a movie star, don't he?"

Asked by Carey if he knew "the defendant 'Snags' Lewis," Robertson replied quickly:

"I wouldn't know him if he were to come in here, to come in right here and sit on my lap."

Deputy Marshal Maurice Wentzell testified he answered 30 telephone calls during the raid on Lewis' headquarters at 4310 46th st., Bladensburg, Md. "They all said 'Snags?' and then hung up," he said.

Robert Williams, 1313 12th st. nw., refused to answer prosecutor William Hitz on the grounds of self-incrimination when he was asked if he were a professional numbers writer.

But when Hitz asked if he had not gone out to Lewis headquarters "near the Peace Cross" on one occasion in an effort to collect a numbers bet for a customer, Williams replied.

"I don't know if it was near the Peace Cross, or not."

Barrett May Ask Apology

occurred Thursday shortly before midnight outside the Congressional Hotel, New Jersey ave. and C sts. se.

On the receiving end of the slap, it was said, was Traffic Police Pvt. Paul H. Bixler.

According to Barrett, Bixler and his partner, Pvt. Walter E. Clark, responded to New Jersey ave. and C st. se., at 11:54 p. m. Thursday, after an accident call was broadcast on the police radio.

They found two cars with bumpers locked. The driver of one car, they reported, was a woman and the other driver a man.

Barrett said Bixler and Clark assisted in parting the cars and then, following police regulations, asked both drivers to show their driving permits and ownership registration cards.

The man did this and was permitted to leave the scene but the woman refused to cooperate, according to police.

Normally, police would have examined the drivers' credentials and that would have been all, for no formal report is required in accidents where injury, property damage or traffic violation is not involved.

Bixler and Clark reported that the woman told them she was "Congressman O'Hara's secretary —Congressman O'Hara of Illinois."

They said she ran into the Congressional Hotel and returned in a few minutes with an elderly man who began to quarrel with the two policemen, finally slapping Bixler.

O'Hara, who is 67 and lives at the Congressional Hotel, denied yesterday that either he or his secretary was involved in the incident.

"The first I knew about it," he said, "was when the newspapers started calling me this morning. In all my 30 years in public life I have never had an altercation with a cop.

"My ring days were over 20 or 30 years ago. It must have been a case of mistaken identity. Some people seem to get a kick out of using someone else's name."

At his press conference at 6 p. m., Barrett told reporters:

"The newspapers called me and asked me if Congressman O'Hara had struck one of my policemen and I picked up this memorandum and read it to them.

"It mentioned Congressman O'Hara's name but I haven't investigated this case and I don't know whether it was Congressman O'Hara."

Barrett said he didn't appreciate his men being slapped, that "I'd rather be slapped myself."

"I would like to back the policeman," he declared, "but I need a chance to investigate."

He then promised to demand an apology of O'Hara if the report is proved true.

House Defeats Rules Change

reply to Representative Leo E. Allen (R., Ill.), ranking minority member of the Rules Committee.

Leading off for the Republicans, Allen said the issue was: "Whether or not President Truman's socialistic program will succeed or be defeated."

Yesterday's vote doesn't necessarily clear the way for the Truman Fair Deal. Many key Truman bills are bottled up in other committees than Rules. But the vote does mean that if any Truman bill is reported by a legislative committee, the Rules group can't sidetrack it indefinitely.

Republican leaders, who lost 15 more votes than when they originally opposed the discharge procedure a year ago, had hoped to cut down GOP defections by postponing the vote on the rules change at least a week.

Republicans justifiably feared that a vote for the rules change at this time would be publicly interpreted as a vote to block discharge of the FEPC bill next Monday.

In an effort to get off that hook, House Republican Leader Joseph W. Martin (Mass.) moved at the start to adjourn the House, and thus postpone the rules action. But Southern Democrats refused to go along on that move. Martin's motion was defeated 255 to 160, an almost party-line vote.

A few of the Republicans who broke ranks against the rules change were merely angry with Southern Democrats for not agreeing to postpone action. Others frankly told newsmen it did them no good in their home districts to be associated with "the coalition."

Even Southern Democratic ranks broke slightly in the showdown. Dixie members, with Administration leanings, took the Rayburn view and supported the present discharge rule.

States in this vicinity divided this way: The Maryland delegation voted 4 to 1 in favor of the rules shift. The Virginia delegation voted 7 to 2 for it.

Representative Eugene Cox (D., Ga.), who led the coalition fight to change the rules, dismissed the outcome with three words. Said Cox: "Too many featherlegs."

Rules Chairman Adolph Sabath (D., Ill.), who in committee and on the floor led the opposition to the change, said what he chiefly feared now is that "the combination in my committee will permit so many bills to pile up for discharge that the 21-day rule won't work very well."

Sabath said he will shortly propose a "modification" of the rule to avert a log-jam of motions on the special discharge days. Under the present rule, committee chairmen can file a rule for discharge on the day their legislation is reported, and then, after waiting 21 days for the rules group to act, can move for floor action.

Sabath's proposed "modification" would require them to wait 21 days before filing a rule for discharge, and then wait another 21 days before moving to call up the bill on the floor.

During yesterday's brisk House debate, House GOP Leader Martin defended the Rules Committee's right to slow down what he said was the country's present trend toward "bankruptcy and the socialistic state."

Representative James W. Wadsworth (R., N. Y.) said the 12 men on the Rules Committee merely sought to "screen" costly legislation when spending took an "alarming" trend.

Representative A. S. (Mike) Monroney (D., Okla.) quipped: "Who are the irresponsible people these 12 men are trying to protect the country from? Here we are, folks."

House Majority Leader John W. McCormack (Mass.) said Republican leaders were telling the Democrats in effect: "You were elected, yes, but give us the power to control you."

Religious Census Under Way in Area

By Martha J. Hall
Post Reporter

More than 2000 workers from 150 churches will begin a one-week religious census of Greater Washington on Sunday.

The census, most comprehensive ever undertaken here, will be sponsored by the Washington Federation of Churches as part of a 15-month evangelism program.

John Halko, director of the federation department of research and church planning, is in charge of census workers and tabulation of returns. During the past week he has met with four groups of workers, and will give last-minute instructions to two more groups on Sunday.

Most of the calls, to be made in the District, Alexandria, Arlington and Fairfax Counties, Va., and Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties, Md., will be made on Sunday afternoon. Others will be made during the week.

Halko said about one third of the Greater Washington area will be covered by the survey. Baptist churches made a similar but smaller survey last year. Information gained at that time will be used in the final tabulation.

Questions to be asked of the more than 200,000 people covered will concern local church membership and attendance, home affiliation and membership, and Sunday school attendance.

Following the census there will be a program of home visitation during the week of February 12 through 17.

Phases of the work of the Federation of Churches will be discussed at many Greater Washington churches on January 22 and 29, which have been designated "Federation Sundays."

The federation, which has a membership of 210 churches and agencies, is beginning its annual drive for funds. Slogan of the drive is "$60,000 for our thirtieth year of Protestant cooperation in the Nation's Capital."

Dedication Ceremonies Set Sunday

Westmoreland Congregational Church, Westmoreland cir. nw., will be dedicated "to the service of God and community" at 4 p. m. Sunday.

The service will be conducted by the Rev. Philip Gordon Scott, minister of the church, and the Rev. Dr. William Frazier of the Congregational Home Board, New York. Following the dedicatory service there will be a reception and open house.

At 11 a. m. Sunday the Rev. Dr. Fred Sherman Buschmeyer of New York, associate minister of the General Council of Congregational Christian Churches, will preach.

Dr. Buschmeyer was for 10 years pastor of Mount Pleasant Congregational Church, and led the congregation of that church in planning for the new church at Westmoreland Circle. He was called to his present position with national headquarters of the denomination about four months before the new and renamed church was opened for services on Palm Sunday, 1949.

Floodlights installed for the church's opening week were originally intended to be temporary, but so many residents of the neighborhood asked to have them on every night that the custom has been continued. A nonmember of the church recently sent in a cash contribution "to help pay the light bill."

Episcopalians To Hold School Of Religion

Clergymen and lay leaders from the 90 parishes in the Episcopal Diocese of Washington will attend a school of religion beginning Monday at St. Alban's parish hall, Wisconsin and Massachusetts aves. nw.

Sessions will be held each Monday from 7:45 p. m. to 9:45 p. m. through February 20. Each meeting will begin with a half-hour meditation on personal religion led by the Right Rev. Angus Dun, Bishop of Washington.

Afterward, the students will divide into groups to attend four courses on the church's work. Class sessions will be from 8:15 p. m. to 9 p. m. and from 9 to 9:45 p. m.

Courses to be offered are:

Young Children and the Church, designed for church-school teachers and parents of young children.

Adults Need Teaching, too, for clergymen and leaders of adult groups, with Mrs. T. O. Wedel as instructor.

Preparation for the New Christian Education Program, for officers of church schools and parent committees, to be led by Mrs. Harold C. Kelleran, diocesan director of Christian Education.

The Church's Program for Young People, for clergy, youth group teachers and advisers, led by the Rev. William F. Creighton, rector of St. John's Church, Bethesda.

Sunday Church Events . . .

The Rev. Edward Hanser, dean of the Lutheran Bible Institute of Brooklyn, will begin a five-week Bible Study series on "Test of Christianity" at 7 p. m. at Augustana Lutheran Church, New Hampshire ave. and V st. nw.

The Rev. Dr. Howard Stone Anderson, former minister, will return to First Congregational Church, 10th and G sts. nw., to preach on "Will Jesus Come Again?" at 8 p. m. He is now pastor of the United Church of Bridgeport, Conn.

'Oriental Day' Set At Shrine Sunday

"Oriental Day" will be observed in connection with the annual Chair of Unity Octave at the Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, Catholic University, at 11 a. m. Sunday.

Divine liturgy according to the ancient Byzantine rite will be celebrated by the Very Rev. Stephen Hrynuck, superior of St. Josaphat's Ukrainian Seminary.

The octave began on Wednesday and will continue through January 25, with prayers each day for the conversion of various groups to Roman Catholicism.

Intention for Sunday is for the conversion of Christians of America to the Catholic Church. The Very Rev. Gerard Fredericks, vicar general of the Missionary Servants of the Most Holy Trinity, will preach at the octave service at 8 p. m.

At the service last night, prayers were offered for "submission of Anglicans to the Authority of the Vicar of Christ."

"God intended that there should be a united Christian front—His One, Catholic, Apostolic Church founded by Christ on St. Peter and governed by the successors of St. Peter, the Roman Pontiffs," the Very Rev. Edwin Favier, guardian of the Capuchin Franciscan Friary, Milton, Mass., declared.

"Unity," he said, "is not the result of compromise. Unity can come only when all are prepared to accept in its entirety the divine teaching of Christ," Father Favier said.

New Cartoonist—HST—Looms As Threat to Comic Artists

The Washington Post

BY HST—Milton Caniff, creater of Steve Canyon, in The Washington Post, holds the cartoon the President drew. Mr. Truman pictured himself peeking from behind a piece of paper

PRESIDENT LAMPOONS HIMSELF—At the White House, President Harry S. Truman tries his hand as a cartoonist under the watchful eyes of some national experts. They are (from left) Russell Patterson, Al Andriola, Milton Caniff and Gregory D'Alessio. The cartoonists called on the President to induct him into Cartoonist Society

If and when a certain man ever vacates Blair House and the White House, there may be an additional strip on newspaper comic pages bearing the initials "HST."

The man made a start yesterday afternoon when members of the National Cartoonists Society called on him in his office. They presented him with an artist's T-square as a symbol of honorary membership.

He responded by drawing a cartoon of himself, admittedly with assists by such luminaries as Milton Caniff, president of the society, and Gus Edson, chairman of its advisory committee to the Treasury. The neophyte signed his work, "HST, 1-20-50."

But, the cartoonists agreed, the finished likeness was not only recognizable, but good. It showed the man, HST peering from behind an artist's easel.

HST ventured no predictions about possibility of his creating a cartoon strip. But society members admitted possibilities of an enthralling one. It could be in the Horatio Alger tradition, rising from a plow furrow in a Midwest State, say Missouri, to a big job on Pennsylvania ave., in Washington. Corny, perhaps, but possible.

Another Missourian, Secretary of the Treasury Snyder, got a T-square and honorary membership. He drew no cartoons. It's against the law to make any reproduction of United States currency

Farm Costs Hit Under Planned Economy Move

Roanoke, Va., Jan. 20 (AP).—The cost of producing milk, meat, in fact all livestock products, is going up "if the present trend toward a planned economy continues," Dr. H. N. Young, director of the Virginia Agricultural Experiment Station warned today.

The Atlantic seaboard and Southeastern States will be hardest hit, he added.

Dr. Young foresaw a permanent corn, barley and oat acreage control program which will put a price floor under the principal raw materials which are fed livestock. He said that step is "possible and perhaps probable."

The experiment station director said a cow is today "a walking milk factory" because of the concentrated feed grains and by-products of the milling industry it eats.

He added that a "national corn acreage control program will postpone indefinitely the time when we may produce enough corn for our own needs."

In biting words delivered to the Virginia State Dairymen's Association at Hotel Roanoke, Dr. Young said "we may have to change our traditional view toward the position presently occupied by feed grains and by-products of the milling industry in planning a ration for dairy animals."

The experiment station has already started an "extended research program with pastures and foage crops," he said.

Man Is Accused Of Being in Public With Tuberculosis

A 28-year-old Army veteran was charged in Upper Marlboro Police Court yesterday with appearing in public while suffering a contagious disease—tuberculosis.

The charge was brought against William G. Osborne of 5507 Silver Hill, rd., Parkland Courts, Md., by Dr. Thomas S. Englar, Prince Georges County health officer.

Judge Arthur P. Owens continued the case to March 3 to let the health department make tests.

Englar said Osborne was ordered last May to remain at home except for necessary trips.

Osborne, who contacted the disease in the Army, said in court that the last time he left a veterans' hospital, a sputum test indicated the disease was no longer contagious.

Bishop Dun to Preach

The Right Rev. Angus Dun, Episcopal Bishop of Washington, will administer the Holy Sacrament of Confirmation and preach at 10:30 a. m. Sunday at Ascension and St. Agnes Church, 12th st. and Massachusetts ave. nw.

Church Group Backs Boothe Anti-Bias Bill

Richmond, Va., Jan. 20 (AP).—The anti-segregation proposals of Alexandria Delegate Armistead Boothe won the unanimous approval of the Virginia Council of Churches at its annual meeting here today.

The council is composed of representatives of 15 Protestant denominations. It stressed that its decisions do not bind or affect the policy of any of the member churches.

The resolution declared compulsory segregation on common carriers as now required by laws of Virginia as "un-christian in principle and impractical and inconsistent in operation."

Boothe said today his bill will be introduce in the House of Delegates next week.

A "strong coalition" in favor of the bill has developed in the House, Boothe said, but he will not attempt to test sentiment in the Senate "until we are assured of passage on this side."

The bill would repeal the State law, but would not change local ordinances requiring segregation, he said. Nor would it attempt to change regulations of bus companies, for example, which provide for segregation.

Mandley Rust

Falls Church Councilman To Resign

The resignation of Falls Church Councilman Mandley T. Rust will be presented to the city council at its Monday night meeting, Mayor Albert M. Orme said yesterday.

Rust

Orme said Rust submitted his resignation by letter several days ago, explaining that he is going back into business and will not have sufficient time to devote to city affairs.

Rust, 38-year-old developer of the Rust Shopping Center in Falls Church, said he plans to become a sporting goods distributor. The new business will "take me out of the city a good deal," he said, "and with that in mind, I don't feel I should go on representing the city."

Rust, who is serving a four-year term, was elected to the council in June, 1949.

Rust was campaign chairman of the city school board's recent successful drive to pass a $700,000 school construction bond issue.

Panel Urges Modernization Of State Laws

A panel of State and county officials and college professors yesterday agreed on the need for modernization of Maryland's 83-year-old constitution.

The discussion took place before 150 women attending a monthly meeting of the Montgomery County League of Women Voters in the Chevy Chase Methodist Church.

The event was the league's opening salvo in its efforts to arouse interest in the movement for a constitutional convention. Voters will be asked to decide their sentiment on the issue in the 1950 general elections.

Participating in the discussion were Mrs. Ralph Himstead, member of the Montgomery County Council; Mayor John C. Post of Takoma Park, Delegate DeWitt Hyde of the Maryland Legislature; Dr. Christian Larsen, head of the bureau of administration, University of Maryland, and John McIntire, professor of municipal and government corporation law, George Washington University.

Among numerous improvements envisioned in a revamping of the constitution were a decrease in the Governor's control over the General Assembly, and more home rule for municipalities.

Sligo Adventists Give Average of $179.63

Nearly a third of a million dollars was contributed by the 1703 members of the Sligo Seventh-day Adventist Church during 1949.

Mrs. Mary D. Patterson, financial clerk, said the total of $305,915.95 was $15,000 more than was given last year. Average contribution was $179.63 from each member.

Harden's 62 Leads, Snead Six Back at Long Beach

By Bob Myers

Long Beach, Calif., Jan. 20 (AP). Favored Sam Snead and fellow big-name professionals took a back seat today to a little known golfer from El Paso, who cracked par by nine strokes to lead the way through the first round of the $10,000 Long Beach Open.

Jack Harden was the big noise as he toured the par 35-36—71 Lakewood Country Club course in 31-31—62, a competitive and course record for this layout.

Snead took his best cracks and emerged with a respectable 68, but it left him six blows behind the leader, trailing nine others and tied in the 68 bracket with 10 others.

Par was a pathetic figure when the lads got through with it on a day that again started very foggy and then cleared brightly.

Thirty-nine players bettered par and 14 equalled it. Only five broke par yesterday when the first half of the unwieldy field played its initial round.

Scores of 74 or under qualified for the second round tomorrow.

Nearest to Harden was Bob Hamilton, 1944 PGA champion, with 31, 34—65.

Four strokes back of the leader were last year's runner-up, Jimmy Demaret, with 34, 32—66; National Open Champion Cary Middlecoff, with 31, 35; Raymond Gafford of Fort Worth, with 33, 33, and Marty Furgol, Albuquerque, N. Mex., 32, 34.

Jack Burke, jr., of White Plains, N. Y., and Houston, Tex., third here a year ago, shot a 36, 31—67, and Johnny Palmer of Badin, N. C., joined the winter tournament trail with a 33, 34—67, a score equaled by his fellow North Carolinian, Al Smith, with 33, 34.

Tied with Snead in the 68 division were such players as Clayton Heafner, Charlotte, N. C., with 34, 34, and veteran Dick Metz, with 33, 35.

Ike Williams TKO's Bratton

Chicago, Jan. 20 (AP).—Ike Williams, world's lightweight champion, tonight scored a technical knockout over Chicago's Johnny Bratton in the eight round of their scheduled 10-round nontitle battle in the Chicago Stadium.

Bratton quit after one minute and 44 seconds of the eighth. He grabbed his jaw in his gloved fist and motioned to the referee, Norman McGarrity, that the jaw might have been broken. Then Bratton deliberately walked to his corner.

Bratton suffered a fractured jaw two years ago in a stadium battle with Beau Jack, the one-time shoe shine boy of Augustus, Ga., and a former lightweight title holder.

Dr. T. R. Hinchion of the Illinois State Athletic Commission, said preliminary examination indicated that Bratton's left lower jaw had been fractured. He was to undergo X-ray examination later.

Williams' victory ended a string of six consecutive knockouts scored by the Chicago welterweight.

G-Man Wilt Beats Barry In Philly Mile

Philadelphia, Jan. 20 (AP).—Fred Wilt, the fast-stepping FBI agent, ran away from Ireland's John Barry on the final lap to win the mile at the Inquirer Indoor Track Meet in Convention Hall tonight.

A crowd of 8200 saw Wilt step around the board in 4:11.8 for a new meet record. The old mark of 4:14 was held by New York University's Les MacMitchell.

Barry, early pace setter, was only three yards back of Wilt at the start of the final lap. But the Irishman didn't have the kick to match the FBI agent and trailed by nine yards at the finish.

Barry, winner of his American debut in a two-mile race at Washington a week ago, held the lead for the first three laps, and then dropped back with Wilt while Neil Pratt of Syracuse and Browning Ross of Villanova battled it out.

Billy Mitchell, Georgetown's big hurdler, repeated his third-place performance of a week ago in Washington by finishing behind Penn State's Jim Gehrdes and Cleveland's Harrison Dillard in the 50-yard hurdles event. Gehrdes' winning time was 6.2 seconds.

In the scholastic mile run, Alphonse Jones of Cardozo, Washington, D. C., set a new meet record of 4:31.5.

Navy's Jim Oberholtzer was second behind Roscoe Brown of New York in the 1000-meter event. Brown's 2:15.8 time set a meet record. In two of the six college mile relay races, Maryland took a second place behind Villanova, and Howard grabbed a third behind Morgan State and Lincoln.

Blow to Maryland '50 Slate

Michigan State Pulls Terps' Game Back to East Lansing

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Maryland's home football schedule for 1950 was dealt a jolting blow last night when Michigan State announced the October 7 clash between the Spartans and Old Liners would be played in East Lansing, Mich., and not College Park.

Ralph Young, Michigan State athletic director, admitted that the game was originally "intended to be played at Maryland," but that Maryland had agreed to return to East Lansing.

The Spartans inflicted Maryland's only loss last year, 14-7.

Young would give no reason for the shift in the site except to say "Maryland has agreed to return to East Lansing and we're happy about it.

"When the two-game series was originally agreed upon," Young, speaking from East Lansing, said, "It was decided that the first game would be held in East Lansing. The site of the 1950 game was to be mutually agreed upon, and we intended for the game to be played in Maryland's new stadium.

"But before Christmas we invited Jim Tatum to bring his team back to East Lansing and he agreed."

When asked if Michigan State's reason for not playing in College Park was influenced by the fact that there are four Negroes on the Spartan squad, Young answered:

"I prefer not to comment on that. We're happy Maryland has agreed to play us in East Lansing again. We look upon it as one of our key games. They gave us a whale of a battle last year, and they had a very good freshman team last season. And we lose 20 seniors from our squad."

With the Michigan State game definitely lost, Maryland's home schedule for its new stadium is almost bare at the moment. Only definite dates are the September 30 date with Navy, when the 35,000-seat stadium will be dedicated, and the November 4 date with George Washington.

Jim Tatum, Maryland athletic director, was in South Carolina on a speaking engagement last night and could not be reached for comment. Tatum is known to be dickering with Duke to transfer its game with Maryland to the new Byrd Stadium and is also seeking another November home foe.

Brothers Decisions Weinberg

Elkins Brothers, Washington's leading heavyweight hopeful, staged a blazing finish to lock up a unanimous 10-round decision over Bill Weinberg last night at Uline Arena.

Weinberg, with only one round to his credit going into the tenth, landed on Brothers with both hands midway in that session, and stung the Washington battler. The result was a terrific slugging finish, which brought the crowd of 1093 to its feet.

Unable to land a solid right during the first nine rounds, Weinberg finally sneaked one through in the tenth, followed up with two smashing lefts to the head, and might have wrapped it up if he hand landed a third. But that third one went around Brothers neck, and Elkins came back fighting.

He cracked Weinberg with a left to the jaw, and split the Chelsea, Mass., veteran's left eye open with a hard right. Weinberg bounced off the ropes and the two boys stood straight up slugging it out for the last minute of the fight.

Brothers, at 192, gave away 16 pounds to the long-armed Weinberg, but Elkins was the aggressor all the way. Referee Harry Volkman penalized Weinberg four points in the second round for low blows, but that was superfluous. Weinberg's best punch, a long left uppercut, earned him the ninth round, the only one he won.

In the semifinal bout, Chief Red Arrow, 165, Oklahoma City, was awarded a technical knockout over Julian Keene, 165, Washington, after 1:25 seconds of the second.

In the preliminary four-rounders, Garland Edwards, 156, decisioned Walter Rowan, 153½, in an all-local scrap, and James J. Kimball, 195, coach of the Naval Air Station boxing team, gave his men a practical demonstration by winning a decision over Ben Harrison, 206, Washington.

Caps Play Sheboygan

The basketballing Sheboygan Redskins, whose success in the pro ball is negligible, invade Uline Arena tonight for a go against the in-and-out Washington Caps.

The visitors, who hail from Wisconsin, have won only 15 of their 35 games and are in third place in the Western Division of the National Basketball Association.

It'll be the first of two meetings between the NBA clubs with the next test billed for Sheboygan next week. For the Caps, who have broken even in 38 outings, it will be the last Uline Arena appearance until February 4.

Coach Bob Feerick's locals are being frozen out for 15 days to permit an ice show to hold forth at the M st. ice house.

Sheboygan, only a few notches above Coach Red Auerbach's fourth-place Tri-City crew, has no "name" performers on its 11-man squad, but one of its players recently made a name for himself. He's Bobby Cook, 5-foot 10-inch hot shot who poured in 44 points against Indianapolis in a recent excursion only to have Minneapolis' George Mikan wipe out the record with a 51-point binge against Rochester.

For the Caps, who once again will be trying to hurdle the .500 mark, it'll be the usual cast. Center Jack Nichols, Coach Bob Feerick, Forwards Bones McKinney and Johnny Norlander, and Guards Chick Reiser, Chuck Gilmer and Freddie Scolari carrying the load.

McQuinn Manages Quebec Team Next Season

Quebec, Jan. 20 (AP).—George McQuinn, former first baseman for the St. Louis Browns and New York Yankees in the American Baseball League, will manage the Quebec Braves of the Canadian-American League next season.

Dr. Armand Bellemare, club president, made the announcement today. McQuinn succeeds Frank McCormick, who led the Braves to the Can-Am pennant and league championship last year.

'Worst I Ever Heard'

Irate Fan Attempts to Slug Branch Rickey After Criticizing His New York Speech

NEW YORK, Jan 20 (AP).—The New York Post said today an unidentified guest attempted to slug President Branch Rickey of the Brooklyn Dodgers after Rickey addressed a gathering of sports notables at a hotel (Astor) last night.

Rickey, the Post says, was in the lobby receiving congratulations from friends when the individual approached him and said:

"As an American I want to tell you that was the worst speech I ever heard."

"I am sorry we disagree," Rickey is quoted as having replied.

A plea by Rickey for racial equality apparently was the cause of the brief scuffle, the Post said.

The man pushed Rickey and swung at his chin. The punch hit him in the chest. Rickey's assailant was rushed away.

The Post added: "In his speech Rickey had predicted the time would come when nobody would think of the racial question in America."

Speaking at the annual dinner tendered by Sport Magazine last night, the beetle-browed boss of the Dodgers also advocated a new idea in baseball that he admitted "would be ridiculed to start with, but would be universally accepted by the major leagues in due time."

It all sounded like a who-dunit plot, what with everybody asking what happened to the outfielders. Well, anyway, listen to what Rickey had to say:

"Here is a suggestion that all managers should take," Rickey began. "In a situation where runners are on first and second with nobody out and a hopeless hitter at the plate, he should order two outfielders in thus making a six-man infield and a one-man outfield. The first and third basemen should move in 20 feet down the line. Then you're equal to all occasions.

"We have plenty of hopeless hitters in our league. I have some on my club. I have a pitcher who never in his life has been able to hit a ball to the outfield. Yet there always are three utterly useless outfielders always waiting for him to hit one. How stupid can they be?"

Rickey said six of the Dodgers tried the six-man infield idea last year and it proved successful.

"I hope the Brooklyn club tries it every day this year," he added, "and I assure you we're going to win the pennant."

Rickey found fault with some of the present-day strategy employed by most big league managers.

"I think of the exaggeration managers place on the hit and run," he said, "how much they overlay it. Some do it so often they wind up masterminding themselves into the second division. In time the hit and run will be deposed and discredited.

"The most stupid play by far is the one where there are two out, the bases full and a three-two count on the batter. Then you see the pitcher take his full windup. What happens? The runner steals home on the pitcher. Yet you often hear this play defended. It's the most stupid play in baseball. Yet it's done."

Five-Year Contract

Sauer Named Coach, Director at Baylor

Waco, Tex., Jan. 20 (AP).—George Sauer, former coach of Kansas and Navy, tonight was named head football coach and athletic director of Baylor University.

Dr. W. R. White, president of Baylor, announced that Sauer had signed a five-year contract to succeed Bob Woodruff, who resigned to go to the University of Florida.

Woodruff resigned after friction with Ralph Wolf, athletic director of Baylor, with the result that Wolf resigned as athletic director and was made Baylor University Stadium director, with the athletic directorship left open. After that Woodruff returned but later resigned to go to Florida.

Sauer takes the combination job of coach and athletic director.

Dr. White did not reveal what the salary was but said it was not as much as Woodruff had received. Woodruff's contract had called for $12,000 a year. Indications were that Sauer's salary will be between $10,000 and $12,000.

Sauer arrived in Waco yesterday morning and the announcement of his appointment came after a meeting of the Baylor athletic committee this afternoon.

Sauer in 1931, 1932 and 1933 played fullback for the University of Nebraska, then coached by D. X. Bible, now athletic director at the University of Texas.

He was All-American in 1933. He was coach one year of freshmen football at Nebraska before playing two years with the Green Bay Packers of the National Football League.

Sauer was all-professional in 1935. He coached a year at the University of New Hampshire, then entered the Navy. He coached at Saint Mary's pre-flight football in 1944. He went to the University of Kansas as head coach in 1946 and in 1947 had co-championships of the Bix Six conference.

His team played in the Orange Bowl in 1948, defeating Georgia Tech.

Sauer became coach of Navy in 1948 and resigned recently when two of his assistant coaches were fired.

The two assistants are Vic Bradford and Bob Ingalls. At Annapolis, Md., they both declined to say whether they are going to Baylor with Sauer.

Bradford, however, admitted favoring Texas to Washington State, where Sauer was also considered as coach. "It is awfully cold up there in Washington," Bradford said, adding "they have some mighty fine football players down there in Texas."

Capt. Howard Caldwell, as Navy athletic director a key figure in Sauer's departure, declared "wonderful—I'm very happy for him. That certainly is good news and I am sure he will do a good job for them."

The present staff of assistant coaches will remain at Baylor, Dr. White said, with Sauer bringing two assistants of his own to add to the staff.

Sauer said he had not determined the two assistants he will bring to Baylor, but, speaking of Bradford and Ingalls, he said: "I am hopeful we can stay together."

As coach at Navy in 1948 his team lost all except one game, gaining a tie with Army. Last fall his team won three, tied one and lost five. Sauer is the third head football coach at Baylor in four years. Frank Kimbrough became coach in 1947 and the first year had a 5-5 record and a 5-3-2 the second year. Last year Woodruff's teams won eight and lost two and finished second in the Southwest Conference.

Buddy Lewis, Others to Teach Game in Germany

Cincinnati, Jan. 20 (AP).—Two major league managers, two umpires and several players will go to Garmich, Germany, next month to tell American Air Forces personnel how to play better baseball.

Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler made the announcement today and the following men have accepted invitations to make the trip by air February 7:

American League—Jack Onslow, manager of the Chicago White Sox; Outfielder Buddy Lewis, Washington Senators; George Stirnweiss, New York Yankee infielder, and Umpire Bill Summers.

National League—Eddie Sawyer, manager of the Philadelphia Phils; Pitcher Hank Borowy of the Phils; George Sisler, the former star hitter and first baseman, and Umpire Art Gore.

For Title

Ez Charles Challenges Joe Louis

New York, Jan. 20 (AP).—NBA heavyweight champion Ezzard Charles tonight challenged Joe Louis to a title fight.

Speaking on a national radio program (We The People—NBC) Charles in the course of an interview with master of ceremonies Dan Seymour said:

"I'm challenging Louis to fight me for the title. I've had 71 fights and I've won 67. I've licked Gus Lesnevich, Joe Maxim, and Joe Baksi."

"All the big ones except Louis," said Seymour.

"Yeah. Joe still packs a terrific wallop. But I'm sure I can give him a fight. There's no such thing as friendship in the ring, so if my old pal Louis is listening in tonight I just want to tell him this: Joe, come on out and fight."

Al Simmons Signs on as Tribe Coach

CLEVELAND, Jan. 20 (AP).—Al Simmons joined the Cleveland Indians as a coach today less than two years after he tried to needle them out of a pennant.

The loud-talking veteran of 26 years in major league baseball, who piled up a lifetime batting average of .334 by the odd procedure of putting his left foot in the bucket, became the third coach to sign for Cleveland.

Already contracted are Oscar Melillo and Muddy Ruel.

Simmons' last coaching job was with the Philadelphia Athletics, where he starred as an outfielder during their golden years in the 1920's and early '30's. He was fired at the close of last season, along with Earle Brucker.

Simmon was with the A's during the hot 1948 American League race when he made his infuriating crack at the Indians.

"Don't worry," said Al. "They'll fold when the going gets rough. They always do."

Rizzuto Picks Yanks Asks for $50,000 Pay

Newark, N. J., Jan. 20 (AP).—Phil Rizzuto thinks the New York Yankees are a cinch to win the 1950 American League pennant, and he wants $50,000 for his part in the flag chase.

The diminutive Yankee shortstop gave out his pennant prediction and salary demand last night a few minutes after receiving a trophy naming him as New Jersey's outstanding professional athlete of 1949.

Deadlock Halts Talks On Setup of 2 Divisions

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, Jan. 20. — The brand-new National-American pro football league finally took some definite action today, preserving the status quo by voting against the admittance of Buffalo.

The action was a distinct surprise to most people on the scene. Late last night, after something like 10 hours of closed debate, it appeared that Buffalo was going to get in the league.

Bids by Houston and Oakland never were treated seriously.

Surprised, and almost as disappointed as the Buffalo crowd, was Washington's George P. Marshall.

The Redskins' president made the motion to raise the membership to 14 teams and was seconded by Baltimore's Abe Watner.

One thing that doomed Buffalo from the start was that unanimous approval was necessary. It's hard to get any 13 people to agree on anything. That goes in spades for 13 highly individualistic clubowners.

The owners took a recess after their momentous decision and went back into a huddle to kick around their other weighty problems.

Tackled next was the question of which teams will be in what divisions.

Although one proposed league division of teams received surprising support, the afternoon session broke up without a decision and it was agreed that the topic would be skipped at tonight's resumption of discussions.

The most popular split of teams had Washington, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Chicago (Cards), Pittsburgh and New York (Giants) in one division, and Chicago (Bears), Green Bay, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Detroit, Baltimore and New York (Bulldogs) in the other.

And it appeared almost certain that Baltimore would be the "swing" team, playing each team in both divisions once.

Talk tonight was concentrated on player distribution, or rather, a basis for distribution which faced difficulties. Even with only three former AAC teams involved there are 51 cases of duplication—instances where two clubs held rights to the same player.

Only known Redskin choice is Michigan State's Lynn Chandnois. And the Cleveland Browns already have him signed.

Strategy, of course, is to keep mum about your intended choices. If 13 clubowners do keep mum, it will be the biggest upset of the meeting.

The meeting adjourned its near-continuous day-long sessions shortly before midnight with little substantial to report.

Commissioner Bell said the 13-team representatives spent most of the evening trying to devise a fair plan to conduct the college

Leon Hart Awarded to Lions

Philadelphia, Jan. 20 (AP).—Leon Hart, Notre Dame's All-America end, was awarded to the Detroit Lions tonight by the National-American Football League. The vote was unanimous. The Lions immediately announced the huge lineman had agreed to tentative undisclosed terms.

Hart was the bonus choice of the Lions at last year's secret draft session of the defunct National Football League. The Irish ace also was selected as No. 1 choice by the Baltimore Colts at a draft meeting of the former All-America Conference. This had been considered one of the major problems of the NAFL's founding meeting.

Commissioner Bell, in announcing the award of Hart to the Lions, said, "The transaction was made on a motion by George Marshall, owner of the Washington Redskins. It was seconded by Abraham Watner, president of the Colts."

Robinson to Get $30,000 Offer

Reynolds and Berra Reject Terms; Page Wants 75% Raise

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (AP).—Allie Reynolds, New York Yankees' pitching hero in the 1949 World Series, and Yogi Berra, his catching mate, today rejected salary terms and thus becoming the first holdouts among the world champions. A terse statement given to the press by Arthur E. Patterson, Yankee publicity director, said:

"Reynolds and Berra paid a visit to the Yankee offices to discuss their 1950 contracts and left without signing."

Asked whether that meant the right-handed pitcher and hard-hitting catcher were holdouts, Patterson replied:

"I wouldn't say that. Nobody is officially a holdout until he fails to report to camp March 1. The players felt they were entitled to a little more money than they were offered. I'm sure they'll come to terms very soon."

PATTERSON disclosed that George Weiss, Yankee general manager, would confer with Joe Page, the relief specialist "sometime tomorrow." Page, who was paid in the neighborhood of $20,000 for working in 60 games last season, is reported to be seeking $35,000, a 75 percent raise.

Across the river in Brooklyn, Boss Branch Rickey of the Brooklyn Dodgers is getting ready to tell Jackie Robinson why he believes the star second baseman should accept a $30,000 salary for 1950. That would represent a raise of about $8000. The National League's most valuable player drew $22,000 in '49.

Reports that Robinson would demand $50,000 appear untrue. While being honored by Sport magazine for his baseball proficiency last season, Robby confided to friends he would settle for "anything between $35,000 and $40,000."

Maryland Harness Purses Raised Before Horsemen Held Meeting

Denying they were perturbed by the formation of a horsemen's group, Maryland's four harness tracks—Rosecroft, Laurel, Raceway, Baltimore Raceway and Ocean Downs Raceway—yesterday revealed they already had raised purses considerably over 1949.

Spokesmen said approximately a half million dollars would be distributed to horse-owners during the 80 nights of 1950 racing, starting May 22 at Rosecroft.

Both Dick Hutchison, jr., president and general manager at Laurel, and Col. Cornelius Jadwin, new Rosecroft manager, said the recent formation of the new Harness Horsemen's Association, Inc., at Smyrna, Del., in no wise had any bearing on earlier plans for increased purses.

Both said their increases were made 10 days ago and were in the hands of the Maryland Racing Commission for approval before the horsemen met.

Hutchison and Jadwin, countering the group's desire for higher purses and plans to "keep harness racing on the high plane it was before parimutuel betting went into effect," pointed out:

1. Laurel is distributing $182,000 as against $117,000 last year, including six $10,000 races, three trots and three paces.

2. Rosecroft is distributing $132,000 as against $112,000 last year with $41,500 in stake awards.

3. Baltimore, operating for the first time, has announced a distribution of $120,600.

4. Ocean City will have a 10 percent increase over the $120,000 distributed in 1949.

They indicated that they expected no unreasonable demands from the horsemen. Both pointed out that stable and other facilities seemed adequate last year and there were few, if any, squawks.

Bill Bennings

Dear Folks:

Jockey Willie Downs, who did so well on Maryland, West Virginia and Jersey fronts last year, is at Hialeah and ready to swing into action. Willie isn't an Arcaro as yet, but he has something on Eddie at that. He can count which was more than the star rider did one day last fall at Pimlico. Remember? Tropical Park, after getting away to a slow start, fared well. Crowds topped those of a year ago and betting was off less than six percent. Apprentice Joe Culmone was the leading Tropical rider piloting 45 winners in 41 days. Culmone, by the way, is of Italian parentage and was born at Delia, Sicily. William Ziegler, jr. will dispose of his breeding stock February 18 at an auction to be held at his Burrland Farm, Middleburg, Va.—Bill player draft. But no solution was reached.

Pros Reject Buffalo's Bid

Bell said the three All-America Conference teams—Baltimore, San Francisco and Cleveland—were offered a bonus pick by the 10 NFL owners in the new league. "The ACC clubs declined a bonus pick, saying they will wait their turn in future years," Bell said.

On advice of Bell the owners decided to refer the draft of active and reserve players of the four defunct All-America Conference teams until Saturday, June 3, the site to be determined later.

Players on the list of the Chicago Hornets, Los Angeles Dons and Buffalo Bills are affected by this decision. Also affected are those New York Yankees who remained after the New York Bulldogs and New York Giants filled their rosters with Yankee players already granted them under terms of the December 9 merger.

Late last night, Marshall confided that Buffalo was as good as in the new league. He even had it figured that the Redskins would play Buffalo on a tentative schedule he discussed.

Today, after the decision, Marshall said, "here's a metropolitan area of more than a million people clamoring for a pro football team and we turn them down. I don't think it's smart."

Naturally, the Buffalo group was crestfallen.

Albert T. O'Neill, power company executive who headed it, said, "Buffalo has suffered a loss in not being able to keep this sport. We also feel that the new league has suffered a loss."

Buffalo now has to refund something like $177,000 in cash to stockholders plus the amount taken in from the sale of 15,000 season tickets.

Commissioner Bert Bell declined to identify the dissenters. He said, though, that it was a voice vote and he heard "several noes" as well as "several yesses."

An ambitious reporter tried to check with the owners and quickly found the first six admitting that they had voted "yes." He quit before he came up with 13 such admissions.

Everyone agreed that the problem Buffalo posed was of a schedule nature. The owners didn't object until they learned that if Buffalo was

Maryland U. to Ask State for $1.5 Million

The University of Maryland's board of regents met yesterday at College Park and voted to ask the State for at least $1,550.000 for new construction.

President H. C. Byrd did not disclose the university's complete program, which may grow beyond the $1,550,000 mark. "We haven't given that out," he said.

3 Specific Items

These specific items did come out of the meeting of the regents, however:

1. The university will ask $1,200,000 in State funds for physics and mathematics buildings to complete the new engineering group.

2. It will ask a $700,000 bond issue for a student activities building. Half of the cost would be met by the State, the other half by a special $5 student fee.

3. It will seek approval of another State bond bill for construction of a "combination athletic, auditorium and physical education plant." The cost was not given but it would be paid for ultimately with university funds.

Attend Charter Day Rites

Dr. Byrd said the university is also hard pressed for more library facilities.

Six of the seven members of the board of regents and Dr. Byrd climaxed their day by attending the annual Charter Day dinner of the university's alumni in the university's dining hall. More than 500 alumni attended the dinner which commemorated the school's 143d anniversary.

Mrs. John L. Whi' hurst, the university's only woman regent, spoke and praised Dr. Byrd for "single handed leadership" that has "successfully resisted un-Americanism and other isms" on the Maryland campus.

Couple Guilty In Dope Case

JAMES ROBERTS
Convicted on eight counts

MRS. "TINKY" ROBERTS

Roberts, Wife Are Convicted

Robertses. The trial began January 11.

"Jim Yellow" Roberts, according to the Government, has been on the "primary list" of the Federal Bureau of Narcotics for more than 10 years. He has been quoted as saying he "had the police department in his pocket."

He was sentenced in May, 1945, to serve two terms of one to three years concurrently as result of convictions in New York and Washington.

Evelina was arrested during the October 18 mass dope raid here—one of the biggest in District history—but her husband escaped the dragnet, surrendering to local officials 10 days later.

The Government's case against the Roberts couple was based almost entirely upon evidence acquired from the defendants' apartment the weekend of October 7 by special narcotics agent Howard Chappell and undercover man James Watson, a former friend of Roberts'.

Roberts was involved in four indictments, in each of which he was charged with illegally transferring narcotics and failing to pay the prescribed tax. He was found guilty of peddling 17 grains marihuana cigarette on October 7 and four on October 8. He was found guilay of peddling 17 grains of bulk marihuana on October 8. He was convicted of peddling 63¼ grains of cocaine hydrochloride on October 8. He was found innocent of peddling 125 grains of codeine sulphate and 4¼ ounces of cocaine hydrochloride on September 12.

Mrs. Roberts was involved in only two indictments. She was found guilty of peddling one marihuana cigarette on October 7. And with her husband she was found guilty of peddling five others on October 7 and 8.

Watson and Chappell were the transferees in each case.

Maragon Attacks His Indictment Alleging Perjury

John Maragon, former White House habitue, filed a motion yesterday in District Court to dismiss the indictment charging him with four counts of perjury before the Senate subcommittee investigating influence peddlers here.

Through his attorney, Maragon who faces trial February 20, charged:

The indictment does not state facts constituting a crime.

The grand jury returning the true bill was illegal since 14 Federal employes were on it.

The indictment does not state that a quorum of the subcommittee was present when the alleged perjury occurred.

Miss McAuliffe Given Praise

Johnson, said they voted against the method by which the selection was made rather than against Miss McAuliffe.

Adelbert W. Lee, chairman of the board's personnel committee, said that Dr. Corning failed to take into consideration all of the qualifications of candidates in making a selection.

Koontz Favored

Lee is known to favor John Koontz, assistant principal of Kramer Junior High School, because of Koontz' southeast connections.

The third candidate for the principalship of Sousa, a southeast school, is Frank A. Stutz, assistant principal of Deal Junior High School.

Dr. Corning said yesterday that he hasn't made up his mind what he will do. He can resubmit the name of Miss McAuliffe or recommend another candidate. Under law the board can fill the post only with his recommendation.

The school superintendent said that failure of the board to support him was "a great blow" but he denied emphatically he will resign over the issue.

Sessions Stormy

The board's committee on personnel held two stormy sessions behind closed doors before the split over the appointment was brought out into open meeting.

It was said by board members that conflicting reports were presented at these meetings on qualifications of candidates.

Official reports of the meeting show that Lawson J. Cantrell, associate superintendent in charge of junior high schools, disagreed with Corning that Miss McAuliffe was the best candidate. Cantrell's view was that Koontz should have the job because of his familiarity with the southeast.

Board members who at first were not told that Cantrell differed with the superintendent's recommendation charged Dr. Corning with not telling the whole story.

Also in controversy was the weight to be given results of an oral examination.

Stutz First

The board of examiners rated Stutz first with Miss McAuliffe and Koontz tying for second place.

Board members said they did not understand the methods members of the board of examiners used in reaching their decision.

In a second oral examination, conducted by Dr. Corning and Cantrell, both school officers rated Miss McAuliffe first.

The official report presented to the board by Dr. Corning showed that Miss McAuliffe had more educational training, more years of service and a higher efficiency rating than the other two candidates.

In graduate and undergraduate courses in education: Miss McAuliffe, 117 hours; Stutz, 59, and Koontz, 57.

In experience in teaching, Miss McAuliffe, 9 years elementary; 10 years junior high, and 6.4 years as an assistant principal. Koontz, no experience in elementary, 7.7 years in junior high, 2.6 years as assistant principal. Stutz, no elementary experience, 8.6 years in junior high, and 3.4 years as assistant principal.

In efficiency ratings: Miss McAuliffe, 861.8 in 1948 and 867.5 in 1949. Kooniz, 805 in 1948 and 843.6 in 1949. Stutz, 757.3 in 1948 and 819.8 in 1949.

One on the Aisle—

Polished Vaughn Spoofs 'Cowhands'

By Richard L. Coe

AMONG THE BANDS that drop into the Capitol during the year, the most reliable for polish and general entertainment is Vaughn Monroe's. This year's visit finds the outfit up to its top-of-the-heap mark.

The Monroe style is smooth, smooth and smooth, taking the stage band pattern and making it shine. There's nothing especially exciting about it, but it's mighty pleasant and the orchestrations are slicker than most.

Among the things you get is Vaughn doing what's expected of him, that is, singing "Mule Train," "Time on my Hands," "Bamboo Wall," "Dear Hearts and Gentle People" and "Clear Cool Water." The last-named comes at the finale, a spoof in effortless, lazy style of the Western craze, with Monroe as "Movealong Monroe."

Ziggy Talent has a nice new number, new at least to me, a chicken song titled, "I Ain't Gonna Take It Settin' Down." Cece Blake sings by herself and with the Moonmen and Moonmaids, "You Told A Lie" and "I Can Dream, Can't I?" Jay Lawrence holds the comedy spot and, while his material isn't unique, he's got a swell ear for how people sound.

All told, with the trucking band pile getting slimmer and luring less youngsters from teacher, the Monroe outfit holds its own as the most enjoyable of our regular visitors.

"The story of Molly X" is the Capitol's screen feature, with June Havoc's compelling performance the picture's strongest feature.

The picture tacks two angles together. It begins by being the story of a female masterminding a small gang of holdup artists. Caught, the girl is sent to California's progressive-minded penal farm for women. There, memory of an undiscovered crime and the comparative freedom of choice she is allowed reforms her approach to life.

The screen play and direction of Crane Wilber allows too many incredible incidents for comfort, and his introduction of obvious humor is at times pretty painful. You get the feeling that he studied "The Snake Pit" too closely. But Miss Havoc, John Russell and Dorothy Hart contribute enough to make you interested in what's going to happen to them.

Being of a mildly suspicious nature, and with the classy-priced band on stage, I didn't expect too much of "The Story of Molly X," but it was certainly more interesting than I'd anticipated. Which may or may not be a recommendation.

For Monroe is the attraction and the gravy depends on your appetite.

'My Foolish Heart' at Trans-Lux

Goldwyn Film Slick but Hollow

"MY FOOLISH HEART" is a slickly-made screen play that seldom gets below the surface of the Trans-Lux screen. Everything about this Sam Goldwyn picture is gilt-edged, but it hath a hollow ring.

Susan Hayward plays a college girl who, in the early war days, falls in love with an ignoble Greenwich Village bachelor who is neither villain nor hero, just a guy playing the field, Dana Andrews.

But Susan is serious and, by a perfectly innocent chance, she's expelled from college because of Dana. Her father, the one natural-like human being in the film, as eloquently played by Robert Keith, upholds her against her ambitious mother. Susan stays on in New York and sees Dana on his infrequent trips from a New England barracks. A baby is on the way and Dana has just written a letter asking her to marry him when he's killed in a plane accident. Susan is about to tell her Dad all this when a fatal illness overtakes him. Soooooo Susan nabs her best friend's boy friend, who once adored Susan, marries him, deceives him about the baby, and lives unhappily in luxury for five years.

Flashback saves Susan though it can't be said to do much for the story (heroines in flashbacks always have the ability to see what happens when they've been nowhere around). The picture ends on a slick-paper magazine note of happiness, with Susan clutching her goggle-eyed daughter, renouncing her patient husband to the care of her old college roommate.

The screen play by Julius and Philip Epstein is the barrier between what might have been a warming, natural story and the surface emotions displayed on the screen. They have not been able to bring true vitality to their scenes.

"MY FOOLISH HEART," screen play by Julius and Philip Epstein, based on a story of J. D. Salinger, directed by Mark Robson, a Samuel Goldwyn production, released by R. K. O. Pictures and presented at the Trans-Lux.

THE CAST

Eloise Winters ..... Susan Hayward
Lew Wengler ..... Kent Smith
Mary Jane ..... Lois Wheeler

Her Escort ..... Tod Karns
Sergeant Lucey ..... Philip Pine
Night Club Singer ..... Martha Mears
Dean Whiting ..... Edna Holland
Usher ..... Jerry Paris
Grace ..... Marietta Canty
Red Cross Receptionist Barbara Woodell
Mrs. Crandall ..... Regina Wallace

Keith's playing of the father is excellent, easy, natural and completely fresh. Miss Hayward moves through her scenes with calculated effectiveness and Andrews somehow manages to keep the soldier from being neither a villain nor a god. Lois Wheeler and Kent Smith are capable in the tritely-conceived roles of girl friend and temporary husband. Mark Robson, who directed "Champion" and "Home of the Brave" struggles with this more familiar theme, only rarely making his scenes live.

But those who liked "Enchantment," Goldwyn's flashback sugar of last year, may enjoy "My Foolish Heart."

4000 Federal Workers In Grades GS-1,2,3 To Be Fired by June 1

The Civil Service Commission has ordered Federal agencies here to fire more than 4000 war service and temporary clerical workers in grades GS-1, 2, and 3 before June 1. The order has provoked scores of questions. Some of them and the answers to them follow:

Q. I passed the second clerical exam and I haven't been certified to a job. What's this red tape about proof of residence?

A. Unless you have veterans preference, you can't be considered for a clerical job here until you get in your proof of residence. About 9000 of the persons who passed one of the three general clerical tests have failed to send in proof of residence forms and they won't be certified for regular appointments until they do. You'd better get in the form soon if you want a clerical job.

Q. Will the temporary Census clerk jobs be filled from the list of eligibles from the recent general clerical exam?

A. No. A special exam is open for temporary Census clerk. More than 15,000 here already have applied for it so you'd better hurry before it's cut off.

Q. I have very good ratings, but I failed all three clerical tests. Will I be able to retain my GS-3 job after June 1?

A. Very unlikely. You could only be saved if most of the people who passed the exams refused appointments.

Q. If I am reached on the list of eligibles, will my name be sent to the agency in which I'm now employed?

A. Yes. But contact your personnel office and have it request Civil Service for your certification.

Q. I passed the second clerical exam held in March, 1949. Why hasn't my appointment been converted to permanent?

A. First, all eligibles from the first two tests haven't been placed. The first two tests didn't produce enough eligibles to fill all of the jobs and so the agencies were allowed to retain many nonstatus clerks, slowing down the use of the eligible registers. Also, you might have been certified to an agency but not selected.

Q. I passed the second clerical exam with a high mark and I haven't been approved for regular status. My home is in the District. Does that matter?

A. It probably does, unless you have veterans' preference. Under the State quota law, nonveterans from States in excess of their quotas must wait until all eligibles from States under their quotas have been certified. And the District has the greatest excess of jobs here.

Q. Which States are over their job quotas here?

A. Besides the District, Virginia, Maryland, Minnesota, North Carolina, Maine, Kansas, Pennsylvania, Vermont, South Dakota, Nebraska, and West Virginia.

JINGLE: David Kandel, 1311 H st. nw., sent in this jingle:

Said Mary Ann the office clerk
As she trimmed her nails, smiling
"When I run out of other work
Then I can do a little 'filing.'"

AFGE: The executive council of the American Federal of Government Employes, at its annual meeting here, yesterday took these actions:

Blasted Defense Secretary Louis Johnson on a charge that he has fired civilians and placed military people in their jobs;

Instructed its officers to push legislation in Congress to prevent military people from doing civilian jobs;

Seated Hugh Lennon as a new vice president and council member after an intraunion controversy. Lennon is from Providence, R. I., and he succeeds John Murray who was added to the AFGE organizing staff.

And, called on the Civil Service Commission to eliminate its "negative" attitude toward employe unions. The Navy was complimented for having one of the best union policies in Government.

Car Kills 2 Children Leaving School Bus

Fredericksburg, Va., Jan. 20 (Spl.)—While their horrified parents and 23 schoolmates looked on, two children, brother and sister, were struck by an auto and hurled 60 feet through the air to their deaths near here today. They had just emerged from a halted school bus.

The tragedy occurred about 3:15 p. m., on Route 1, about 5 miles north of here.

Virginia State Trooper W. J. Townsley said the death car hurtled around another one already stopped, in accordance with law, because the school bus was stopped to discharge children. It continued at "high speed," Townsley said, striking the two children, and narrowly missing another boy monitor who was out with a flag to aid in signalling cars to stop, the trooper said.

Victims were Eugene, 11, and Maria, 7, children of Mr. and Mrs. Edison Brown. The parents operate Mubrow's Silver Dollar Inn on Route 1, about 5 miles north of here. Robert was pronounced dead on arrivel at Mary Washington Hospital here, and little Maria died of her injuries 90 minutes later.

The parents were standing in the doorway of the inn watching and welcoming the two home when they were struck. On the other side of the road, northbound, 23 schoolmates were in the bus and saw their friends hit and tossed through the air. They went into an hysterical panic.

Driver of the death car was booked as Robert Janyer Spencer, 27, RFD, Chester, Va. He formerly lived at 1102 Wilkes st., Alexandria, Va., with two brothers, but moved from there several months ago. Police said he is a bulldozer operator for a Falls Church, Va., concern.

He was booked on a double manslaughter charge and held here under $5000.

Rules and Rates

D. C. Parking Probe Asked By McMillan

Representative John L. McMillan (D., S. C.) last night demanded a sweeping investigation of Washington's parking rules and rates.

McMillan is chairman of the House District Committee.

He called for the investigation in a formal House resolution, which was referred to his committee.

Chairman McMillan said the next move will be to discuss the proposed investigation with the committee at its next meeting, probably February 6.

Number of Complaints

He said he may suggest that two or three members make a preliminary study of the situation.

McMillan said he introduced the resolution after receiving a number of complaints, many aimed at the prices charged for off-street parking, and the no-parking rules for many streets.

He said he has not personally received many complaints about the city's "snow parking" bans, but added that other members of the House have received such complaints.

Cost More Than Movie

Just before he introduced the resolution, McMillan said two persons complained to him because they paid more to park their car to attend a night movie than they paid to get into the show.

He said he also received complaints about the no-parking areas, day and night, on some of the wider streets. He suggested the investigation might show it is possible to find parking room for several thousand more cars on Washington streets.

"We're going to look into the whole situation and see if we can't find some remedy," he said. "I think we've waited long enough. Anybody who has ever had a car in Washington has found some parking problem here."

More Off-Street Parking Needed, Upham Says

In the last four years 5640 off-street parking spaces have been added to downtown Washington facilities—but there's a need for several thousand more.

Charles M. Upham, who presided at a meeting yesterday for the first time as chairman of the Motor Vehicle Parking Agency, said the most acute need for parking is in the retail shopping area.

This area, bounded roughly by 15th and 7th sts. nw. and Pennsylvania and New York aves. needs 3000 to 4000 more spaces, he said.

Development of facilities in this area is the chief job now facing the agency, Upham said.

One possible solution the agency will consider is a revival of fringe lots. This was on the docket for discussion yesterday, but was postponed until the February 17 meeting.

Another aid, Upham said, might be construction of elevator garages. Such garages can be built on much smaller lots than garages using ramps, he said.

To get all views on solving parking problems, the agency will ask groups such as the American Automobile Association and the Board of Trade to offer suggestions, Upham said.

Truck Driver Cleared In Child's Death

A District Highway Department truck driver was exonerated yesterday in the recent traffic death of Gloria Jean Parker, 5, of 761 Howard rd, se.

The driver, Nathaniel I. Clarke, 38, of 1101 O st. nw., was cleared by a coroner's jury at an inquest.

Police Accident Investigation Unit officers testified the child had been driven home from school January 10 in a private automobile, and when she got out in front of her home ran from behind the car into the left rear wheel of the dump truck driven by Clarke.

Pop Goes Bottle As Grocer Routs Lootless Bandit

A District grocer routed a holdup man after bashing him with a bottle last night, but he still isn't sure whether the bandit had a real or toy gun.

William Gottlieb, 45, of 6024 8th st. nw., told police he was behind the counter of a grocery store at 642 15th st. ne. about 8:30 p. m. when the bandit walked in, flashing a gun. He thought the gun was a phony, picked up a bottle, hit the bandit in the face and then tangled with him. The intruder, however, escaped without any loot.

In another robbery, Robert L. Cokely, 22, of 5503 Volta ave., Sunnybrook, Md., was held up and robbed of between $250 and $300 as he was closing the Sunoco Service Station in Cheverly, according to Prince Georges Detective Earl J. Huber.

Steam From Cooker Burns Arlington Wife

An Arlington housewife suffered first and second degree burns of the face, chest and arms yesterday when steam from a pressure cooker erupted as she removed its lid.

Mrs. Clarence A. Dillon, 5127 27th rd. N., who was treated at Arlington Hospital, said she was using the cooker minus its usual sealing clamp—and did not realize steam had accumulated.

Patricia Anne, Still In Coma, Under Knife

Eight-year-old Patricia Anne Carey was still unconscious in Washington Sanitarium late last night, 15 days after she was struck by an auto in Silver Spring.

The daughter of James B. Carey, secretary-treasurer of the CIO, Patricia Anne underwent an exploratory operation yesterday with no change in her condition which was termed "as good as could be hoped."

Habeas Corpus

Court Issues Writ in Custody Case

District Court Judge Richmond B. Keech issued a writ of habeas corpus for David Gregory Little, 4, yesterday as another chapter in the Little custody story began to unfold.

David

Judge Keech's writ was issued against Floyd Little, of 1315 10th st. nw., at the direction of John W. Tramburg, director of the Board of Public Welfare.

In his application for the writ, Tramburg charged that Little had "abducted" the lad from the Industrial Home School Annex last October 30. He declared that neither Mr. and Mrs. Little is "in any way related" to the boy, and that his mother, Mrs. Mary Hudson, of 5630 Branch ave. se., has named the Board of Public Welfare as the child's guardian and surrendered her rights in the child's future.

Once before the Littles were the center of a custody fight, when Mrs. Geraldine Little fought attempts of Mrs. Mary Miller to regain custody of her child, Jonathan. Mrs. Miller, who lives at 6123 Parkwood rd., Landover, Md., contended that Mrs. Little had kept the child through fraud. The court awarded the child to Mrs. Miller.

While the case was being fought, Mrs. Little abandoned David Gregory and Edith Christine, 15, at Board of Public Health Headquarters. They were placed by welfare officials in the Industrial Home School Annex, where Edith is still receiving care. David was "abducted," according to Tramburg, from the annex.

The habeas corpus writ is returnable in Judge Keech's court on January 31. In his petition for the writ, Tramburg declared that Floyd Little "is neither a fit nor proper person to have custody of David nor can he provide a proper home for him."

The Board wants custody of the child.

7 Considered For Sesqui Fair Director

Barron Won't Divulge Names; Gen. Devers Rules Himself Out

Seven men are under active consideration for appointment as "director general" of Washington's Sequicentennial Freedom Fair, but Gen. Jacob Devers, USA (ret.), is not one of them.

This was disclosed last night by Carter T. Barron, executive vice chairman of the Sesqui Commission. He declined to say who the seven are and said no selection will be made until February.

In the meantime, he said, negotiations will go forward until some recommendation can be made to the executive committee and then to the full Sesqui Commission at meetings after February 1.

General Devers, who is now managing director of the Traffic Safety Foundation of the American Automobile Association, said last night the question of the managership had been discussed with him once, but his present duties and obligations forbade his accepting it. He said he was "embarrassed" by the fact that the Sesqui discussion with him became public.

Barron also said after a day's survey, following his return from Florida:

1. There definitely will be a Freedom Fair and doubters are wrong.

2. In 15 months of operations, the Sesqui Commission, including its paid staff, has spent only $51,000.

3. "Plan A," which includes construction of a stadium in Rock Creek Park and presentation of a great historical drama, beginning in June, is "going ahead well."

Barron declined to discuss a furor over the proposed selection of Jan Sibelius, 85-year-old Finnish composer, to write music for the "Plan A" historical drama. Paul Green, Pulitzer prize-winning dramatist who is writing the pageant, asked Sibelius to compose the music. This brought immediate criticism in Congress.

Representative Gross (R., Iowa) insisted an American composer can be found to write the music.

Barron said the Sesqui Commission knew nothing of Green's overture to Sibelius and has not discussed it.

Loan Discussed

D. C. Water Plan Obtains 'Hill' Backing

The Commissioners yesterday laid before Congress their $67,605,000 long-range program to expand the city's water-supply system, and apparently won some support.

Sen. Hunt

The city heads and District budget officials gave the slightly revised water expansion proposal its first Capital Hill airing in a closed meeting of the Joint Fiscal Subcommittee of the Senate and House District Committees.

All participants in the morning conference declined to give financing details of the water supply "bolster" program. It was learned, however, that Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young talked in terms of a 23 million dollar direct Treasury loan, of which 10 million dollars would be sought initially. The loan would be repayable beginning in fiscal 1961.

Would Keep Present Rates

Receipts from water assessments and Water Fund appropriations could underwrite the balance of the 30-year water system overhauling, the legislators were told. Water rates definitely would not be increased, the city heads also emphasized.

Senator Lester C. Hunt (D., Wyo.), committee cochairman, said later he "generally approved" the idea of borrowing money from the Treasury for more adequate water facilities.

"But the possibility of the District securing a Federal loan without paying interest," he added, "is out of the question.

The Commissioners had expressed the hope they could swing a loan without interest.

May File Bill for Loan

Hunt indicated he would introduce legislation authorizing the requested loan. Last fall the city heads rejected a Water Department appeal to abandon the pay-as-you-go policy for water improvements.

The informal meeting also discussed other District building plans for permanent improvements. It was agreed, Hunt said, that Congress should not bind the District to earmark specific amounts for school construction or for any other public improvements.

House Group to Start Crime Hearings Soon

Representative James C. Davis (D., Ga.) said yesterday public hearings in the Washington crime investigation may begin in 10 days to two weeks.

Davis is chairman of the special House District subcommittee assigned to investigate crime and law enforcement in Washington.

The group met yesterday in executive session to hear further reports by Hyman I. Fischbach, counsel, and John Woog, investigator. It was the second such meeting.

Davis said the subcommittee will resume its executive discussions at 4 p. m. Tuesday.

Davis told reporters the investigation is going "full blast," but declined to say if any starting information had been turned up.

Flue Fire Routs Family of Four In Fairfax County

A family of four was driven from its two-story frame house in Fairfax County last night by a flue fire from a wood-burning stove which caused an estimated $5000 worth of damage.

Forced to take shelter with relatives when the fire almost burned out the inside of their home at Seminary rd. and Valley la., were Herbert N. Carter, an American Railway Express employe, his wife and two children.

Carter and Fairfax County police privates Julius G. Hollowell and Le Rogers were able to save some furniture and many of the family's personal belongings. Groveton and Bailey's Crossroads firemen put out the blaze.

Citizens Differ on Economy, Agree D. C. Pays Too Much

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Washington citizens asked Congress yesterday to cut their real estate taxes and increase the Federal payment to the District.

The appeal was made to the House District Appropriations Subcommittee headed by Representative Joe B. Bates (D., Ky.). About 50 persons appeared for the hearing, leaving big sections of vacant seats in the spacious House caucus room. The hearing resumes at 10 a. m. Monday.

The Bates group also heard demands both for sharp economy cuts and for sizable increases in the Commissioners' proposed 119-million-dollar budget for the year starting July 1. While proposing more Federal and less local money to pay the bill, spokesmen for citizens' group conceded they hardly expect a change in either the present 12-million-dollar-a-year Federal payment or in the $2.15-per-$100 real estate tax rate.

Asks Return of 60-40 Ratio

Herbert P. Leeman, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, called for a return to the system in effect in the early '20s when the District paid 60 percent and the Federal Government 40 percent of the budget. He also urged that the tax rate be dropped back to $2.

Clifford H. Newell, past president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, said the budget was too large, contained too many expenses that should be carried by the Federal Government, and was overloaded with capital improvement expenses that should be handled on a long-term loan basis. He spoke for the Arkansas Avenue Community Association.

Would Ban More Employes

John H. Connaughton, immediate past president of the federation, speaking for the Petworth Citizens, called for frugality and urged that funds for hiring more employes be refused.

Charles J. Bauer, of the Washington Building Owners and Managers Association, said the Federal Government should pay one fourth to one third of the District budget bill. He urged a return to the $2 real-estate tax rate, and elimination of the District personal-property tax.

In contrast, spokesmen for the District Communist and Progressive parties, called for doing away with the sales tax.

Mrs. Milton Dunn, of the District League of Women Voters, urged increased health and welfare funds. She criticized the Commissioners' reduction of school budget proposals, and said Congress should make no further cuts.

Mrs. Richard Radue, of the District Congress of P-TA's, also asked adoption of the school budget as is.

Want School Addition

Funds for an 8-room Payne School addition were asked by Robert Goodloe, of the Southeast Civic Association, and by Lemon H. Moses, jr., of the Payne School P-TA. Robert Brooks, of Terrell P-TA, requested funds to replace the Terrell buildings with a new school.

Dr. Paul Cooke, of the American Federation of Teachers, Local 27, called for additional funds to hire more teachers in Negro high and junior high schools.

Appeals for additional school appropriations were also presented by Gardner L. Bishop, of the Consolidated Parent Group; and Harry I. Rand, of the West Home and School Association; Dr. Ellis Haworth, of Wilson Teachers, and Dr. J. F. Bate, of Miner Teachers College.

Want Langdon Field House

Mrs. Henry A. Bartlett of Burroughs Citizens, asked money for hiring a consultant for the Maternal and Child Welfare Division of the District Health Department.

Freeman A. Weiss of the Rhode Island Avenue Citizens, and Robert M. Burrows of the Burroughs Citizens Association, urged approval of about $25,000 now in the budget for building a field house in Langdon Park, Mills ave. and Franklin st. ne.

Arthur R. Cochel, sr., of the Columbia Park Community Club, called for about 2.5 million dollars to complete the relief sewer project in the Piney Branch area.

Burdick Has Pneumonia

Representative Usher L. Burdick (R., N. D.) has pneumonia and is in Bethesda Naval Hospital, officials reported yesterday. He entered the hospital last Monday with a slight cold. Barring complications, attendants said, he should be released in "about two weeks."

For Patients

Congressman Wants More From District

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

A House Appropriations Committee member has proposed that Washington take a bigger hand in supporting Federal-District financed institutions here, it was disclosed last night.

With an eye peeled on the new District sales tax, Representative E. H. Hedrick (D., W. Va.) made the plea during recent House hearings on 1951 appropriation requests for Freedmen's Hospital and Columbia Institution for the Deaf. The hearing testimony was released last night.

The Congressman asked Herman A. Johnson, acting superintendent of Freedmen's what the District pays for patients admitted to the hospital.

"Nine dollars per day," Johnson replied.

"What is the total cost per patient per day?"

"The total cost is $17, approximately."

"Do you think the District could pay more than $9?"

"I cannot answer that question."

"You know they have a sales tax here of 2 percent?"

"Yes, sir."

"Who pays the difference between the $9 and 17 per day?"

"The Federal Government."

Representative Hedrick took the same tack when the committee took up the 1951 spending program of Columbia Institution. This time he got a more definite answer from Leonard M. Elstad, executive officer.

Told that the District pays $750 per pupil for attendance at the institution, representing about half the over-all cost to teach and support each student, Hedrick said: "Since the District is getting in better financial condition, why shouldn't they pay as much as anybody else?"

"I don't think," Elstad came back, "there is any good reason why they shouldn't."

He assured the Congressman that the District would be asked to make slightly bigger payments.

Protection Law Sought By Lensmen

A drive for legislation to protect news photographers while on assignment will highlight a weekend convention here of Region 3 of the National Press Photographers Association.

More than 200 photographers from Washington and nearby States and their wives are expected to take part in the meetings at the Carlyle Hotel.

At the first business session at 9 a. m. today, James Rowley, chief of the White House Secret Service detail, will explain the problems of guarding the President in relation to news photographers.

Also scheduled to speak are Senator Hubert H. Humphrey (D., Minn.); Walter Wood, picture editor of The Washington Post; District Fire Chief Joseph A. Mayhew and Prof. Alfred Crowell, head of the department of journalism at the University of Maryland.

An unspecified but apparently healthy number of Washingtonians are viewing color television through adapters costing from 30 cents to as high as $5.87.

Receipt of this somewhat startling intelligence yesterday exploded the myth that color TV is currently being enjoyed only by the classes.

Presumably there were only 25 sets in the country, including those in the homes of President Truman and the seven FCC commissioners, equipped to receive the experimental color broadcasts of the Columbia Broadcasting System.

But yesterday it developed that:

A Naval Research Laboratory instrument maker whose "wife wanted to see color TV" has obliged her at a cost of 30 cents.

Several NRL engineers have converted their black-and-white sets to receive color. So have at least seven WTOP engineers, several Federal Communications Commission employes and how many more people here is anybody's guess.

A story yesterday from Roselle, N. J., identified a 27-year-old electrician there as the only man in the United States seeing color TV except on the 25 sets. He had rigged an adapter for 30 cents.

Actually 30 cents is the cost of three rolls of red, blue and green cellophane, meaning the electrician had the other materials.

But Horald Saylor, 41, WTOP engineer, started from scratch and got color TV at his home at 3232 13th st. se. for $5.87.

The adapter consists of slats of colored cellophane mounted on a disk, red, green and blue alternating. The disc rotates at high speed in front of the TV viewing tube, blending the colors into a true picture.

Here's where Saylor's $5.87 went:

He paid $1.50 for the disc, 30 cents for the cellophane, $2.57 for a synchronous motor and $1.50 for gears to bring the motor's RPM-rate down.

These are about the regular prices for these items, said Saylor, except the motor. It costs around $40 new. He bought his surplus one for a fraction of that.

Saylor claims you need very little technical knowledge to make the conversion — and even less money.

Harrison P. Hagemeyer, 111 18th st. se., the NRL instrument maker, said why, of course, he'd been seeing color TV since the broadcasts began in November. Hagemeyer has a shop in his basement, so his total cost was three roles of cellophane.

S. S. Zlotnick, D. C. Furrier, Wins Divorce

Sidney Somers Zlotnick, 38, a $12,000-a-year furrier, won an absolute divorce yesterday from the former Rebecca Schoenberg Zlotnick, 40, onetime concert dancer.

The decision climaxed three years of litigation between the parties in District Court. Mrs. Zlotnick, who danced under the name of Helga Faringmore did not appear to testify in her husband's present suit.

Zlotnick, a short bespectacled man charged his wife with desertion. He said that in 1945, after a series of quarrels, he went to New York with his wife to look for a job there.

He testified that she left him waiting for 2½ hours on a street corner while she visited her parents. He said he scolded her when she came back, and that she then turned her back on him and left.

Zlotnick declared he hoped that she would remain with him but that instead she later packed her things and left. He said that he never gave her cause to leave him.

In decreeing the divorce, Judge Edward M. Curran refused to grant her any maintenance. There are no children.

In 1947, Judge F. Dickinson Letts threw out of court Mrs. Zlotnick's suit for a limited divorce charging cruelty.

Zlotnick resides at 3601 Connecticut ave. Mrs. Zlotnick said she will resume her name of Rebecca Schoenberg. She lives with her parents in New York.

Bids on Last Contract In Underpass Opened

Bids on the last contract for work on the Dupont Circle underpass—paving of the underpass roadway—were opened yesterday at the District Building. Lowest of the four bids submtted was $77,257 by Curtin & Johnson, Inc., 1125 Brentwood rd. ne.

The $4,150,000 project is scheduled for completion about the end of March, highway officials said.

Home-Made Color Television Adapter . . .

INEXPENSIVE—Walter A. Brester, WTOP engineer, of 3910 9th st. ne., is one of several persons in town who has made a color television adapter with little more than some colored cellophane, bailing wire and scotch tape. He picked up a second-hand synchronous motor to spin the six-color wheel in front of the black-and-white screen on his TV set

Probate Action Started on 3 Wills Here

Probate proceding began yesterday in District Court in the estates of three prominent lawyers here.

The estate of the late Isidore Hershfield, a founder of the Jewish Community Center who died November 9, was listed at $48,472.69. His only heir was a son, Lawrence H. Hershfield, of 1901 Columbia rd. nw.

The bulk of Mr. Hershfield's estate is put in trust to provide $80 a month for his son.

The College of the City of New York, where the decedent was a student in 1888 gets $3000 for a prize for proficiency in Latin.

Eventually, four New York Jewish organizations will get the larger portion of the estate. They are Congregation Shearith Israel, the New York Guild of Jewish Blind, the New York Association for the Blind and the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society.

He stated in his will he was leaving nothing to the Jewish Community Center because he had turned over a substantial life insurance policy to the organization.

Lest anyone should contest his will on the ground of mental incapacity, he named 11 lawyers and businessmen who he said would vouch for his ability.

James A. O'Shea, a widely-known criminal lawyer, left about $75,000, all of it to go to his widow, Mrs. Carolyn T. O'Shea, of 1613 Madison st. nw.

Police Trial Board Puts Off 2 Hearings

Trial board hearings for two policemen, scheduled for yesterday, were postponed to next Friday because their lawyers were busy in court.

At 10 a. m. next Frday, Pvt. Philip L. Thomas of the Eleventh Precinct will appear before the board on a charge of failing to report to roll call on time on December 25. Thomas was fined $40 in December after a trial board found him guilty of the same offense on two other occasions.

At 2 p. m., Pvt. Ernest R. Amos of the Seventh Precinct will appear before the board on charges of willfully maltreating or using unnecessary violence on a prisoner and conduct prejudicial to the reputation and good order of the police force.

The charges grew out of a complaint of Albert B. Vincent, 46, of 1721 1st st. nw., that he was beaten and kicked by Amos in the robbery squad room at police headquarters September 29. A few days later, Amos was reduced from the rank of detective sergeant to private and transferred from the detective bureau to the Seventh Precinct.

Her grandneice, Mrs. Emma Lewis, 3313 13th st. nw. and grandnephew, Joseph C. Jennifer, 1141 22d st. nw., finally convinced her that she couldn't look after herself, and placed her in the National Non-Sectarian Old Folks Home, 1634 S st. nw. last week.

An 18-year-old girl from Unity, Kans., who came to Washington early this month to get a job, died yesterday after taking poison.

Dr. Frank J. Broschart, Prince Georges County medical examiner, said the girl, Patricia Savidge, whom he described as "very pretty," had admitted taking poison on January 10. She was rushed to Suburban Hospital, her stomach washed out and returned to her rooming house, 741 Sligo ave., Silver Spring, he said. Later she again became ill, and was readmitted to the hospital on the 14th.

Promotion of two police sergeants, one a woman, to the rank of lieutenant was announced yesterday by the Commissioners.

Detective Sergt. Dorothy F. Alderman, who has been attached to the sex squad, was promoted to a new lieutenancy in the Woman's Bureau. The new post gives the bureau three lieutenants.

Both promotions are called temporary and the extra pay will be made up out of salary lapses—from unfilled positions.

At an inquest by a coroner's jury yesterday, Detective Sergt. Lloyd Furr testified the couple quarreled because she did not have dinner ready for Lucas when he returned home.

Furr said the woman went across the street to visit friends and Lucas went after her and started to return her home at which time the shooting occurred.

Press Club To Continue Trusteeship

Members of the National Press Club voted unanimously yesterday in their annual meeting to continue a trusteeship plan for administering the club's controlling interest in the National Press Building Corp.

Only change voted was to expand the club's building trustees from three to five members.

The vote was made necessary because of termination of the present trusteeship at the end of this year. It was originally established after a reorganization of the Press Building Corp. in the early 1930's. Ending of the present trusteeship plan will mark retirement of a substantial amount of debt on the building.

The members authorized the club's board of governors to appoint the five trustees for staggered terms. The new arrangement will continue for 10 years from December 31, 1950.

At the annual meeting, new officers elected in December, headed by Radford Mobley, jr., president, were inducted into office.

King's Widow Tells of Party With Pritchett

Mrs. Eva King yesterday in District Court told of attending a party with Fred S. Pritchett the night before her husband was slain.

Pritchett is charged with first-degree murder in the shooting of Mrs. King's husband, Clyde, a railroad engineer, at the B. & O. railroad yards here last July 10 at 3 a. m.

Mrs. King testified her husband was also supposed to attend the party but was suddenly called to work, so she, Pritchett and her 8-year-old grandson went by themselves.

She said she had two glasses of wine, became ill and was driven to her home, 212 Channing st. ne. She testified she had no recollection of an argument ensuing between her husband and Pritchett when the car pulled up in front of the house.

On Wednesday the grandson, Edward, had testified Pritchett and King fought in front of the house an hour before the shooting.

Mrs. King concluded her testimony by telling of a fight her husband and Pritchett had several months ago.

The trial before Federal Judge T. Alan Goldsborough will be resumed Monday at 10 a. m.

725 From 'Hill' Visit Austrian Art Exhibition

A total of 725 Congressional workers and legislators yesterday attended a special showing of the Austrian art collection at the National Gallery.

The two-hour showing began at 5:15 p. m., after the regular gallery closing at five o'clock. David E. Finley, gallery director, was on hand to greet his guests, most of whom went through the collection of paintings and objets d'art in tours conducted by gallery lecturers.

Dr. Ludwig Kleinwaechter, Austrian Minister to the United States, also attended.

The exhibition will remain on view through Sunday. During the regular hours yesterday, 11,731 persons saw the exhibit, bringing the total to 790,516. The collection may be seen from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. today and from 2 to 10 p. m. on Sunday.

Prison Terms Ordered for Musical Pair

A night club songstress and her trumpet player boy friend were sentenced yesterday in District Court to serve prison terms for what Judge F. Dickinson Letts called a five-month "misadventure" throughout the country.

They are Mrs. Delight F. Mitchell, 23, mother of a 22-month-old boy in Chicago, and Keith W. Cruise, 27, of Los Angeles. Mrs. Mitchell received three concurrent one to three-year terms and Cruise got a three-to-nine-year sentence.

Mrs. Mitchell pleaded guilty to cashing $600 worth of bad checks here and driving a stolen automobile across State lines. Cruise was sentenced on the stolen auto charge and on the gun-point robbery of a hotel clerk here. Mrs. Mitchell still faces trial on the robbery charge.

They were sentenced after an impassioned plea by James P. Sharp, Mrs. Mitchell's attorney, that she was a "good girl" who was overpowered by Cruise.

Sharp said that her difficulties began because of an unhappy family situation where she and her husband lived with in-laws.

"When two families live in the same home, you know, your honor, even in my home, it is the husband who bears the brunt of it," said Sharp.

In another sentence, Lucius Grant, 23, of 1620 Fuller st. nw., received two to six years in prison for assault with a dangerous weapon, a shod foot, on Theodore Freeman, of 1753 Swann st. nw.

Leon J. Bryant, 26, of 73 G st. nw., received a five-to-15-month sentence for a narcotics law violation.

Alfred S. McLean, of 1722 N st. ne., received a two-year probation term for illegal possession of marihuana.

Roy Johnson, alias Leroy Johnson, of 1519 Marion st. nw., received 30 to 90 days in jail for illegal possesion of numbers slips.

George E. Hicks, 58, listed at 1834 Columbia rd. nw., received 16 to 48 months in prison for breaking into the apartments of two women and stealing $200 in goods and cash.

Paul R. Lacks, 24, of 86 Congress ct. nw., received 15 to 45 months for an $8 knife-point robbery.

Seymour Adler, 32, part owner of a drugstore and residing at 6024 8th st. nw., received two years probation for a narcotics law violation.

Pinball Case Approaching Showdown

The question of whether pinball machines will operate in Arlington County appeared headed for a showdown yesterday.

Comomnwealth Attorney Denman T. Rucker said that he still stands by his statement of last week that the machines are illegal and must be removed from the county.

Hirsh de La Viez, who has installed more than 50 pinball machines in Arlington, said, "No, were not going to remove them."

Last Saturday, Rucker reversed his previous ruling and declared pinball machines illegal. He announced that he had given de La Viez one week to remove his machines from the county.

He declined to comment yesterday on what action he will take.

"I don't need to call my shots," declared Rucker. "I'll confer with the chief of police on Monday."

De La Viez, president of the Hirsh Coin Machine Corp., 1309 New Jersey ave. nw., said he doesn't believe he'll find it necessary to obtain a court injunction to prevent removal of his machines.

He said he will confer with his attorney, Oren Lewis of Arlington, at 1 p. m. today and will know better about his plans after that meeting.

"But as far as I know," he added, "we're going to sit tight."

Lewis said he had talked with Rucker three or four times and still has not been given an "official ruling."

"In my opinion," said Lewis, "a ruling is based on a violation of some statute. I attempted to find out what statute and was not successful.

"Until I receive a copy of an official ruling, I'm in no position to do anything other than retain my present opinion, which is that there is nothing illegal about pinball machines."

French Singers Delight Embassy Guests

By Marie McNair

THOSE nine famous Frenchmen—Les Compagnons de la Chanson—who sing nightly at the Shoreham put on an extracuricular performance yesterday afternoon.

The Ambassador and Mme. Bonnet invited in a small group of their friends to hear the songsters who've become something of a sensation since they first came to this country a couple of years ago.

It was such an informal party that, lacking chairs, Mme. Van Kleffens, wife of the Netherlands Ambassador, and Mrs. James Webb, wife of the Undersecretary of State, were among those tucking their feet under their skirts and sitting on the floor. Mme. Bonnet, in a swishing black taffeta frock, stood in the doorway practically in tears of laughter as the boys went through "The Duel" in two acts. They sang also, "The Bells," a poignant piece called "The Prisoner in the Tower," and at least three more in varied mood.

Lady Franks Attends

Lady Franks, wife of the British Ambassador, was there in a printed beige and brown foulard frock, a bowler hat of brown felt, and stayed for a drink afterward. The two ladies in smart and sleek black sitting together were Mme. Dendramis, wife of the Greek Ambassador and Mme. Mantzavinos, wife of the Finance Minister of Greece who are at the Shoreham until Sunday.

The Swedish Ambassador and Mme. Boheman joined their pretty young daughter, Mona, who had arrived earlier, and also there were Mme. LeGallais, wife of the Luxembourg Minister, and Mme. Diamantopoulos, wife of the late Greek Ambassador.

Biddles Congratulate Singers

Former Attorney General Francis Biddle and Mrs. Biddle congratulated the singers in French as guests surrounded them at the buffet. Mrs. Clark Clifford was introducing her mother, Mrs. Daniel Kimball.

Handsome Mrs. Millard Tydings, there with her mother, Mrs. Emlen Davies, caught everyone's eye with her watermelon pink flower-trimmed hat.

No Dissents as Vinson Turns Texan to Honor Clark

By Nicha Souré

CHIEF Justice Fred Vinson drew an imaginary .45 last night and drawled, "This is one time there are going to be no dissents filed." And no dissents were forthcoming.

All of the approximately 400 Texans and a few special invited "foreigners" gathered at the Mayflower Hotel were of one opinion. They thought Tom Clark was a great Texan.

Speaking to the members of the Texas State Society who had met to honor Justice Clark, Chief Justice Vinson declared that, although he was a Kentuckian, "tonight I will be a Texan, from that fabulous State with fabulous people."

Paying tribute to his fellow justice, Vinson also said that he knew of no person who had as many warm friends as Tom Clark. In recounting the events of Clark's life, Justice Vinson said, "Tom Clark won his biggest case in 1924 when Mary consented to be his wife."

Acknowledging the tributes, Justice Clark said, "I think they should have banquets like these for wives like Mary."

The smiling Justice held up a program for the State Society dinner. He pointed to the picture on the back—Tom Clark as the Attorney General wearing a bow tie and a wide-brimmed hat. "That's a friendly fellow there, looks as if he has human kindness in his veins." Turning over the program, Justice Clark pointed to the formal picture on the front of himself as a justice. "I'd be afraid to look at him," was his comment.

Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn, also a Texan, was toastmaster at the banquet. All of the Supreme Court Justices, with the exception of Justice Black who is in New York and Justice Douglas who is in Arizona—gathered to pay tribute to Justice Clark. Representative Tom Pickett of Texas, president of the Society, presided.

By Gene Jones—The Washington Post

TWO "foreigners" were among the guests at the Texas State Society dinner last night honoring Justice Tom Clark, the first Lone Star Stater to be appointed to the Supreme Court. Left to right they are Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson (a West Virginian); Justice Clark; and Chief Justice Fred Vinson (a Kentuckian).

Emotion Ties To Ill Health Are Detailed

Emotions influence all illnesses, not just the few that have popularly been termed psychosomatic illnesses, according to Dr. Daniel Blain, medical director of the American Psychiatric Association.

Dr. Blain, who was guest speaker at the luncheon meeting of the Women's National Press Club yesterday at the Mayflower Hotel, pointed out that emotions are involved in all illness ranging from such seemingly physical troubles as anemia and brain tumors, through the usually recognized ones like peptic ulcers, to those in which the emotional basis is clear such as psychoneurosis and hysteria.

The exact degree to which emotions affect physical health and vice versa cannot be measured exactly, he said.

U. S. Aware of Illness

Discussing the belief that America had more mental patients than other countries, Dr. Blain said he thought other countries were not fully aware of what the mental picture was at home, and that America, perhaps, had only recognized and treated more of its cases.

As for the increase of mental cases here, Dr. Blain said the growth paralleled population gains and that there is not a larger percentage of mentally ill now than in the past.

Although about half of all hospital beds in the United States are occupied by mental patients, Dr. Blain explained these are largely occupied by the one third of 1 percent of the population with serious psychoses who spend long terms in the hospital.

Few Need Psychiatrist

The remaining part of the population and its mental state he divided thus:

Afflicted with neuroses such as anxiety and obsessions, 5 percent; border conditions such as alcoholism, suicide, school failures, multiple divorce, sex offenses, juvenile delinquency, or some physical condition related to an emotional condition, 50 to 90 percent. All of us come within the "normal deviation range" which includes moodiness, irritability, exhaustion, and defenses, he explained.

About 98 percent of all emotional situations can be handled without the help of a psychiatrist, Dr. Blain assured his audience. It is only when a person feels "out of his depth, can't work or sleep, and can get no help from consulting some friend in whom he has confidence," that he needs to go to a psychiatrist, he said.

Short Treatments Aid

As has been shown by the psychiatric work done by the Veterans Administration, a patient may often benefit from a short series of treatments, according to Dr. Blain. It is only when a serious personality defect is to be overcome that a long series of treatments including psychoanalysis, is necessary.

Persons are rarely listed as dying of mental disease, except in cases of suicide, but research has shown that mental patients who recover and go home live 50 percent longer than patients who do not recover mental health, Dr. Blain declared.

Silent on Hiss Case

In the field of international problems, psychiatrists "suspect" that individual psychopathic conditions are paralleled in mob and national psychologies, he said.

In reply to a question on the value of psychiatric evidence in the Alger Hiss trial, Dr. Blain recited an answer which he said he had prepared:

"I don't know Mr. Hiss. I don't know Mr. Chambers. I don't know anything about it except what I read in the papers and I haven't any comment."

About Refinishing Chairs

I wuold appreciate information on how to finish several cane-seated chairs in the Hitchcock manner. Where could I acquire stencil patterns and directions? N. C. R.

Stencils for decorating Hitchock chairs can be ordered from the American Home Magazine, American Home Building, Forest Hills, New York, N. Y. If you do mueh decorative work you may be interested in ordering from the above address a booklet called "750 American Home Patterns." This booklet sells for $1, and in addition to the stencil patterns contains patterns and directions for making slip covers, rugs, and so forth—everything you want to make in your home. The illustrations are in color

I have received a beautiful mahogany salad bowl. It appears to be highly varnished. Should this varnish be removed (and how) before using the bowl? I understand a wooden salad bowl should not be washed; merely wiped after each use. Is this correct? M. B. D.

No, since this bowl undoubtedly has a deep protective finish, make no attempt to remove it before using. Wipe it off with a cloth wrung out in lukewarm soapy water, rinse with cloth wrung out in cold clear water, and dry immediately. That's all it should take to get it in shape for using.

As to the future: There are indeed schools of thought that maintain that water should never touch a salad bowl. However, here's a point: If desirable flavors can be absorbed, so can undesirable ones. It's better to get that bowl really clean after each use. Do not immerse it in water; this can make it warp and crack. Simply follow the procedure outlined in the paragraph above, wiping it out with soapy water, then clear water, and drying immediately.

Where in D. C. can I have a cloth coat lined with an old fur coat? P. G.

You will find several firms listed under "Tailors" in the yellow pages of the telephone book which do alterations, relining, and such work. I suggest you visit one or more of these shops with your coats on your arm and discuss the work with them. Usually it is necessary for the tailor to see the garments to be remade before he can say whether the alteration can be done.

Can you give me a few tips on building a fire in a fireplace (one with andirons)? No matter how much dry wood and crushed up paper I poke into the thing, it just snuffles right out. K. T.

The efficiency and cleanliness of fireplace and chimney of course have a good deal to do with the way the fire burns. However, supposing that this one works well when more practiced hands build the fire, here are some suggestions for getting the blaze going:

1. Place a large log on the back of the andirons first. A slightly smaller log should go next in front of it, and a still smaller one on top of the two.

2. Next, put paper and kindling underneath for the full length of the logs. Sheets of newspaper, folded in quarters and then crumpled hard, make an excellent substitute for kindling wood.

3. If one of your troubles is thick smoking just after the fire is lit, this is usually due to the air in the flue becoming too dense and heavy to be quickly started into movement. Twist a piece of newspaper into a long spill, light one end, and stick it through the throat opening of the chimney. This will create a draft and help start the fire without difficulty.

How can I straighten warped phonograph records so that I can play more than one at a time on my record player? E. D. G.

You can get a slight warp out of records this way: Lay them—two or three at a time—on a flat surface which is slightly warm. The top of your radio may serve the purpose, if it's absolutely flat.

Put a big heavy book on top of the records as a weight and leave it there for several days until the disks are flattened. Sometimes, when records have warped standing up in an album, the trouble can be corrected simply by laying the album flat in a warmish place for a while.

To B. M., who asked about a type of children's clothes designed to "grow with the child:" I believe the article she recalled was one in "This Week" magazine about clothing copyrighted under the name "Merrymites" and made by Merry Hull, who designs the free-finger glove.

The clothes are expandable to two sizes larger than the original. A Washington store (telephone, National 7733) is the exclusive agent for them here, and they are expensive. Patterns for them can be obtained for 25c each, the article stated, by writing Station G. P. O. Box 239, New York 19, N. Y. They come in sizes 1 through 6. A. C.

Isn't there an easier way of shining brass andirons than rubbing for hours with metal polish? How about steel wool? E. D. G.

An easier way to clean brass andirons than by going over them inch by inch with polish is with vinegar and salt. Make a solution of vinegar and as much salt as you can make dissolve in it. Wash the brass with this, leaving on a few minutes if necessary to take off tarnish and corrosion. Be sure to rinse all the vinegar-salt solution off very thoroughly afterward with clear water. When dry, buff well.

Speaker Lists Democratic Aims for German Youth

"The children of Germany must be taught democracy every step of the way," according to Miss Margaret Sorenson, adviser of Women's and Girls' Activities of the German Youth Activities program.

Speaking before the Congressional Club yesterday afternoon, Miss Sorenson, who is now on leave in this country, explained that even in such trivial matters as naming their sewing groups, German children have to be taught to make their own decisions.

The youth centers which are operated by the American GYA. help to keep the youngsters off the streets and combat juvenile delinquency. They also help to fight the Communist ideology with democracy, said Miss Sorenson. She stressed the fact that the word democracy is never thrust on the youngsters, but that democratic methods of action are taught them. In the groups—music, sewing, sports, or discussion that are offered—the young people write their own constitutions and make their own rules.

Varies From Tradition

The importance of inclusive groups like GYA in which "the banker's daughter meets the plumber's son and finds he's nice" is understood, said Miss Sorenson, when seen in the light of the traditional German group which is an exclusive church, political party or trade group.

Even these groups were not permitted during the rise of the Nazis, Miss Sorenson pointed out. All German children had to be members of Hitler Youth, an organization which numbered 15 million by the war's end.

The sudden collapse of their ideals when "Der Fuehrer, who could do no wrong, was defeated by 'empty-headed' Americans," as the Hitler-trained young people saw it, left German youth in a vacuum and made the delinquency problem very serious, according to Miss Sorenson.

German Adults Aiding

Knowing that their work must be temporary, GYA has already brought in German adults to help handle the centers. They will form the nucleus of leaders when the Americans have gone. There are already 1500 of them—some paid, some volunteers— doing the work.

The age group served by GYA is technically 10 to 25, but there are kindergartens for children of 4 and 5 and discussion groups for those up to 35.

"In Germany you are considered 'youth' until you are 30," Miss Sorenson said.

Above all, GYA hasn't tried to Americanize the young people, but to make them good Germans, she explained.

Miss Sorenson was introduced by Mrs. Ralph Church, president of the club. Those who assisted at the tea table folowing the talk were Mrs. Zales N. Ecton, Mrs. Clair Engle, Mrs. Walter K. Granger, Mrs. Foster Furcolo, Mrs. Hampton Fulmer, Mrs. Robert Hale and Mrs. Cecil N. Bishop.

Thirty-eight women from the Washington area, all of whom have been members of the PEO Sisterhood for 40 years or more, were honored at the annual PEO Founders' Day celebration last night in the social hall of the Foundry Methodist Church.

The 25 PEO chapters in the District united in observance of Founders' Day. Mrs. D. S. Coombs, president of the District of Columbia Chapter, headed the receiving line at a reception preceding the formal program.

Mrs. R. H. Young and Mrs. D. C. Turley lighted the candles of remembrance for the seven young women who founded PEO in 1869 at Iowa Wesleyan College, Mount Pleasant, Iowa. Today the organization numbers more than 100,000 active members.

'This I Remember'

Roosevelt Tells Red-Hued Youth Group Facts of Life

This is another installment of the serialization of "This I Remember," the nonfiction best seller in which Eleanor Roosevelt tells the story of Franklin D. Roosevelt's career, from 1924 to his death in 1945. Succeeding installments will be printed in The Washington Post through February 4.

By Eleanor Roosevelt

I HAD had a chance to tell the queen that little Diana Hopkins aged eight, whose father they had met, was very excited about the royal visit, because the only kind of queen she knew anything about was a fairy queen. Therefore she assumed that Queen Elizabeth must be a fairy queen. The Queen had at once suggested that Diana be in the hall as she and the king left for dinner. So Diana and I sat in the second-floor hall waiting for them to come down on their way to the British Embassy for the formal dinner there.

The King was resplendent in his uniform, but Diana had eyes only for the Queen, who wore a white spangled dress and jeweled crown. She looked like a fairy queen, and the illusion was so perfect that when I presented Diana she curtsied to the Queen and ignored the King. Both of them said a few kind words to her and then went down in the elevator. A few minutes later Diana and I went down to the ushers' office, and I turned over to Harry Hopkins a starry-eyed little girl who will never forget, I hope, what a fairy queen really looks like. Her remark was: "Oh, Daddy, I have seen the Fairy Queen."

My husband and I followed the King and Queen to the embassy, and after dinner they went to their train. They were to visit the World's Fair, first driving through crowded New York City streets with Mayor LaGuardia. Later they were to drive to Hyde Park.

After they left we took a train to Hyde Park, where we had the day to prepare for the 24 hours which the King and Queen were to spend with us there. My husband always loved taking people he liked home with him. I think he felt he knew them better once they had been to Hyde Park.

We sat in the library in the Hyde Park house waiting for them. Franklin had a tray of cocktails ready in front of him, and his mother sat on the other side of the fireplace looking disapprovingly at the cocktails. More than once she told her son that the King would prefer tea. My husband, who could be as obstinate as his mother, kept the tray in readiness, however. Finally the King and Queen arrived. I met them at the door and took them to their rooms. In a short time they were dressed and down in the library. As the King approached my husband and the cocktail table my husband looked up at him and said: "My mother does not approve of cocktails and thinks you should have a cup of tea." The King answered: "Neither does my mother," and took a cocktail.

Like a Father

DINNER had been so late that the evening was soon over, and we all retired, leaving Prime Minister Mackenzie King and King George to talk to Franklin. It seemed so late when they came upstairs I felt sorry for them, but the next day the prime minister told my husband that after they finally retired the King had knocked on his door and asked him to come in and talk. Why, the King had asked him, didn't his ministers talk to him as the President had that night? "I felt," he said, "exactly as though a father were giving me his most careful and wise advice."

The next day, after we had all been to church, people from far and near came to Franklin's cottage for a picnic.

The people who had worked on our place for many years, as well as all our guests, had an opportunity to meet Their Majesties, and then when the picnic and the handshaking were over, my husband invited the King to swim with him in the pool. I hoped the Queen too would feel she could relax in the same way, but I discovered that if you are a Queen you cannot run the risk of looking disheveled, so she and her lady-in-waiting sat by the side of the pool with me while the men were swimming.

After a very quiet dinner we took the King and Queen to their train at the Hyde Park station. Their luggage and all the rest of the party were on board.

The royal couple stood on the platform of the train as it pulled out, and the people who were gathered everywhere on the banks of the river and up on the rocks suddenly began to sing "Auld Lang Syne." There was something incredibly moving about this scene—the river in the evening light, the voices of many people singing this old song and the train slowly pulling out with the young couple waving goodby. One could only think of the clouds that hung over them, of the worries they were going to face, and turn away leaving the scene with a heavy heart.

Many people may have forgotten how worried we were about the young people in our country during the early days of the depression.

The teen-age youngster, the boy finishing high school, the boy who had struggled to get through college—all were at loose ends. We heard of them leaving their homes because they could not find jobs and could not bear to eat even a small smount of what little food their families had.

One of the organizations most prominent at the time was the American Youth Congress. It spread all over the country and worked closely with other youth groups such as the Southern Youth Council and the Negro Youth Congress.

Hard Working Group

I LIKE all young people, and the AYC was an idealistic, hard-working group. Whether or not its members were Communist-inspired at first I have never known. After I had been working with them for a time and accusations had begun to be made, I invited a number of the leaders to come to my sitting room at the White House. I explained to them that since I was actively helping them, I must know exactly where they sood politically. I knew well that the charges against them might be false, since all liberals are likely to be falsely labeled whatever the current word may be. When I was young it was "anarchist," then it was "Bolshevik," and now it is "Communist."

I said I could quite understand it if any of them were Communists. After all, they had grown up at a time so difficult that they might easily have found appealing almost any ideas promising better conditions than those they had experienced. However, I also felt it essential for me to know the truth. If we were going to work together, I had to know on which points we really agreed and on which we differed.

Bluntly, I asked each one of my visitors to tell me his honest beliefs. Each one said he had no connection with the Communists, had never belonged to any Communist organizations and had no interest in Communist ideas. I decided to accept their word, knowing full well that sooner or later the truth would come out.

Franklin's first real contact with the American Youth Congress was made after I had become fairly certain they were Communist-dominated. Their speeches and actions had begun to conform more and more closely with the party line, and a few little incidents had made me suspicious. They organized a parade in Washington and also called a meeting. I induced my husband to address them from the south portico of the White House. It rained that day, and a very wet group stood out in the south grounds. They must have been most uncomfortable but were expecting, I am sure, to be patted on the back. Instead, Franklin said some pretty harsh things about their responsibilities and attitudes toward life. Though his intent to be kind and understanding was evident, he told them some truths, which I thought it wise for them to hear. It was time they realized how other people, even sympathetic people, regarded their activities.

A Warning

ALTHOUGH his words were kindly meant, the speech was nevertheless a warning, and these young people were in no mood for warnings. They booed the President. I could see how both sides felt on this occasion, but I was indignant at the young people's bad manners and lack of respect for the office of President.

Franklin and I on one occasion were given an opportunity to see a confidential list of organizations which were considered Communist or subversive or un-American. It was compiled by the FBI for the use of the Dies Committee. People who contributed to, or were members of, any organization on that list were ipso facto under suspicion. Among those we found listed as having contributed to two or three of these "questionable" organizations were Secretary Stimson, Secretary Knox and my husband's mother, Mrs. James Roosevelt. Franklin and I were vastly amused by the inclusion of her name. We could picture her horror if she were told that the $5 or $10 she had given to a seemingly innocent relief organization placed her among those whom the Dies Committee could easily label subversive!

The American Youth Congress, of course, was violently opposed to "imperialistic war," and when Russia became an ally of Germany their insistence on peace became more and more vociferous. Any preparation for war, they felt, was outrageous. They condemned every move made to prepare for war or to help the countries fighting Germany. In August of 1940 I invited some of the leaders to come to Hyde Park for a night, and I told them quite plainly that I would no longer be able to work with them as an organization; I would give them a small monthly contribution for their work among dispossessed sharecroppers, but in other respects, we had come to a parting of the ways.

As soon as the news was received that Germany had invaded Russia they held another meeting and clamored for cooperation with Russia. They even sent me a telegram saying, "Now we can work together again." The war was suddenly no longer an imperialistic war, and the pickets were called off the White House. Of course, I never worked with them again, for I felt I could not trust them to be honest with me.

Learned Red Tactics

I HAD great sympathy for these young people, even though they annoyed me. In that critical period growing up was much more difficult than it had been at any previous time any of us could remember. I have never felt the slightest bitterness toward any of them and, as a matter of fact, I am extremely grateful for my experience with them. I learned what Communist tactics are. I know how infiltration of an organization is accomplished. I understand how Communists get themselves into positions of importance. I understand all their methods of objection and delay, the effort to tire out the rest of the group, then carry the vote when all their opponents have gone home. These tactics are all familiar to me. I know, too, that no defeat is final. In fact, I think my work with the American Youth Congress was of infinite value to me in understanding some of the tactics I have had to grapple with in the United Nations!

Job-Holders Called Foes Of Home Rule

Certain recipients of political patronage "are ready to deprive a million people of self-government to save their wretched little jobs," Culver B. Chamberlain said last night.

"They are playing politics at our expense," he told a meeting of the Alumni Association of the Howard University School of Social Work in the university library.

Chamberlain, president of the Central Suffrage Conference, said here was opposition to home rule from certain District offices which are now filled by political patronage but which come under the jurisdiction of an elected city council if the Kefauver bill were enacted.

Strong opposition, he said, also comes from "vested interests who want to keep control of the city." These interests use the race issue as an argument to mask their real intent, he said.

D. C. Builder Charged With Tax Evasion

The Federal Government charged yesterday that Robert E. Funkhauser, 57, paid only $243 income tax on earnings of more than $89,000 over a five-year period.

Funkhouser, who lives at 5315 Colorado ave. nw. and describes himself as a former contractor, was released in $1000 bond yesterday after an appearance before United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence.

He will be tried on five counts of income tax evasion in Federal Court in Baltimore early in February.

For the calendar years of 1943 through 1947, the Government contends, Funkhouser filed joint returns in his name and his wife's name, showing a minus income of $5533 on which a tax of $243 was paid.

However, the Government says over this period he actually earned $89,474 and should have paid taxes of $29,064.

Commissioner Lawrence gave the defendant this specific breakdown yesterday:

In 1943 he reported a loss of $697 and paid no tax, whereas it is alleged he made $14,467 and owed a $4294 tax.

In 1944 he reported a loss of $4422 and paid no tax, whereas it is alleged he made $16,533 and owed $5452 taxes.

In 1945 he reported a loss of $4346 and paid no tax, whereas it is alleged he made $17,025 and owed $5692 taxes.

In 1946 he reported income of $1430 and paid no tax, whereas it is alleged he made $23,417 and owed $8195 taxes.

In 1947 he reported income of $2502 and paid $249 taxes whereas it is alleged he made $18,032 and owed $5430 taxes.

ABC Objector Says Club's New Race Policy Not to Blame

The manager of the apartment house in which the Dixie Supper Club is located yesterday denied renewal of the restaurant's ABC license was being protested because of its recently announced policy of nonsegregation.

The denial came from Frank Hagerman, manager of the Cavalier Apartments, 3500 14th st. nw., at a hearing before the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board.

The restaurant is rented by Bob White's, Inc., from Cavalier Apts., Inc., under a 5-year lease, signed in May, 1948.

Hagerman said yesterday he and the owners of the apartment house, which has 221 units occupied by white persons, were protesting because the Dixie Supper Club has become more of a night club than a restaurant.

The restaurant has ceased to serve lunches, operates under night-club hours and has entertainment which has proved annoying to the other tenants, the board was told.

When asked directly if the objections were being made because of the new nondiscrimination policy, Hagerman gave an emphatic "no."

The hearing was continued to 1 p. m. Monday to let representatives of the Columbia Heights and Petworth Citizens Associations speak before the board.

Scheduled for hearing in Landlord and Tenant Court February 2 is a suit, filed by the apartment-house owners against the restaurant operators, seeking to break the lease.

Harold White, president of Bob White's, Inc., and manager of the restaurant, said after yesterday's hearing, "We're in the restaurant business to make a profit and the only way we can make it is to have no discrimination there."

Since the beginning of the month, the patronage has been about half Negro and half white, he said.

There have been no disturbances while the restaurant has been open, he said, but recently, when he opened up the restaurant, he found sand in the exhaust fans. Another time, he found the juke box in a back room damaged. He said he had not reported the matter to police because he did not want publicity.

Old Ohio Stater Caniff Makes a Killing

Milton Caniff, creator of Steve Canyon, was in town yesterday to see the President. Later, he stopped by The Washington Post to say hello.

My greeting from Milt, who gets several thousand dollars a week for drawing his tremendously popular comic strip, was:

"Boy oh boy, did we do it to them in that Rose Bowl game! I won four bucks on it."

PERSONAL NOTES

W. James Bastian, 7903 Foster st., District Heights, Md.: There are easier ways to make a living than writing clever headlines. Using several hundred words to get a laugh is one thing; doing it in 18 "units" of type is quite another. But we try.

ANSWER TO YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE

The problem didn't make much sense to me until I attacked from the rear, and worked backward to the beginning.

The last few words revealed that Mary is the elder of the two, so I let x equal Mary's age at the time she was three times as old as Ann. When Ann becomes three times as old as Mary was at x age, Ann will be 3x. When Mary was half that old, she was 3x over 2. At that time, Ann was an unknown number of years younger than Mary, a constant quantity we can call y. In other words, she was (3x over 2) minus y. Mary is now twice that old, or 3x minus 2y. Ann is now y years younger than Mary, or 3x minus 3y. And we know that their combined ages, 3x minus 2y plus 3x minus 3y, equal 44. Or, 6x minus 5y equal 44.

Having arrived at that point, I was stumped. I couldn't figure out how to get rid of one of those unknowns, to solve the equation.

Then it dawned on me that if Mary was three times as old as Ann when Mary was x years old, the difference in their ages, which we called y, must have been two-thirds of x. That was the key that unlocked the puzzle and let me get to bed at long last.

Substituting the 2x over 3 value for y, the equation becomes 6x minus (10x over 3) equals 44; x equals 16½, which is Mary's age when she was three times as old as Ann.

So Ann must have been 5½ at that time; the difference in their ages must be 11, and that makes Mary currently 27½ years old and Ann 16½. And if she gives me any more trouble, she'll never live to get any older.

MISCELLANY

The Washington Institute of Mental Hygiene, 1464 Columbia rd. nw., found an unexplained $20 bill in its mail the other morning, and Director William L. Granatir wants the donor to know that the money will be used to buy equipment for play theraphy for children . . . Lela Updike, secretary of the Lorton Community League, tells me that the Lorton Little Theater will present "Everybody Works But Father" at 8 tonight, at the Lorton School . . . Bill Black, manager of the Hotel Carlyle, is wearing dark glasses in self-defense this week-end. Region 3 of the National Press Photographers Association is meeting at the Carlyle, and the dark glasses are Bill's answer to the popping flashbulbs . . . Tom Beesley of the Dorchester House says he is starting a campaign to get people to use the term "Metropolitan Washington" to describe not only the District but "all its satellite suburbs, including Baltimore". . . Baltimore residents will please note the quotations marks, and direct their irate replies to Mr. Beesley, not to me . . . Ernie Simon, Washington lad who hit the radio and TV jackpot in Chicago, advises me that after Bob Hope was in that auto accident, he wired Ben Hogan: "Now will I be able to play golf as good as you do?"

LETHAL WEAPON DEPT.

OPPORTUNITY in disguise

Opportunity is calling on us these days, but we don't recognize her . . . because she comes under the name of "Increased Income." The increases in salaries enjoyed by most of us in recent years has in many instances led only to "Increased Spending." For your future put SOME of these extra dollars in a Burke and Herbert Account. MAY WE TALK IT OVER WITH YOU?

WHAT'S BEHIND PRINCE GEORGES SCHOOL PROBLEM?

By

AGNES E. MEYER

Are we building a world worth saving when we neglect our school children? That's a question Agnes E. Meyer asks as she examines the school problems of Prince Georges County.

Add nearly 75,000 people to a county in three years, crowd the schools with 42 to 58 pupils to a teacher and you have a social crisis—one which must be solved if young people are to become constructive citizens.

With four to six children sharing a locker for their coats, with two boys or girls occupying seats intended for one, with double shifts using over-taxed school facilities, with almost half the mothers working, young people are being pushed toward delinquency.

In her articles, based on weeks of research and discussion in the county, Mrs. Meyer points out the effects on the schools of the slow reform of an outmoded county government and the straining of tax income sources.

No taxpayer, educator or parent in Prince Georges County can afford to miss this series on the vital subject of educating America's future citizens.

U. S., China History Repeats

By Drew Pearson

History sometimes repeats, though with reverse angles. It was just a little over 100 years ago that the United States was also having trouble with China—not with the Communists but with His Imperial Majesty, the Emperor.

Pearson

The trouble then, somewhat as today, was over the exclusion of American business from Chinese trade, and because the British, as today, were getting the inside track.

As a result, President John Tyler sent what Maury Maverick describes as "the corniest note ever signed by a President" to the Emperor of China urging him to open his ports to the United States.

Not foreseeing that China someday would undergo vast political changes, Daniel Webster, then Secretary of State, made this observation in his letter to Ambassador Cushing:

"It cannot be foreseen how rapidly or how slowly a people of such peculiar habits as the Chinese, and apparently so tenaciously attached to their habits, may adopt the sentiments, ideas and customs of other nations."

Violent Flip-Flop

Little did Webster realize that China someday would desert her traditional isolation for the violent political philosophy of Karl Marx.

At that time, however, the Chinese were really stony-hearted—except to nations with navies as large as the British. Therefore, President Tyler's letter to the Emperor got nowhere. It said, in part:

"The Chinese love to trade with our people, and to sell them tea and silk, for which our people pay silver, and sometimes other articles. But if the Chinese and the Americans will trade, there should be rules, so that they shall not break your laws nor our laws. Our minister, Caleb Cushing, is authorized to make a treaty to regulate trade. Let it be just. Let there be no unfair advantage on either side.

"Let the people trade not only at Canton, but also at Amoy, Ning-Po, Shang-Hai, Fu-Chow, and all such other places as may offer profitable exchanges both to China and the United States, provided they do not break your laws nor our laws. We shall not take the part of evildoers. We shall not uphold them that break your laws. Therefore, we doubt not that you will be pleased that our messenger of peace, with this letter in his hand, shall come to Peking, and there deliver it; and that your great officers will, by your order, make a treaty with him to regulate affairs of trade—so that nothing may happen to disturb the peace between China and America. Let the treaty be signed by your own imperial hand. It shall be signed by mine, by the authority of our great council, the Senate.

"And so may your health be good, and may peace reign.

"Your good friend,

"John Tyler."

No Kowtowing

Daniel Webster, in his instructions to Ambassador Cushing, carefully cautioned him not to kowtow to the Emperor.

"The Chinese are apt to speak of persons coming into the empire as tribute bearers to the emperors," Webster cautioned. "This idea has been fostered perhaps by the costly parade of embassies of England . . .

"It cannot be wrong for you to make known," Webster continued, "that the United States, once a country subject to England, threw off that subjection years ago, asserted its independence, sword in hand, established that independence after a seven years' war, and now meets England upon equal terms upon the ocean and upon the land . . .

"Finally, you will signify, in decided terms and a positive manner, that the Government of the United States would find it impossible to remain on terms of friendship and regard with the Emperor, if greater privileges or commercial facilities should be allowed to the subjects of any other government than should be granted to citizens of the United States."

Today, 107 years later, we're right back where we started from—the British trading in China and the United States closing up its consulates.

LET THE COLD WINDS COME . . . it's bound to happen sooner or later, and we can't go on having weather like Florida's. We just aren't in the same weather zones.

So, don't despair if it grows cold outside . . . head down to Center Market City for gay house plants to bring Spring indoors. If you'd like to start some plants of your own—to move outdoors come Spring—visit Delvigne's stand in the front of the Market. This is one of the oldest stands at Center Market City, and you can count on interesting information regarding plants, as well as the newest in "green thumb" information.

HERE'S SOME information regarding your house plants, once you've made your selection at Delvigne's. Remember that all plants need light. This doesn't necessarily mean sunlight, but it does mean that a plant left alone in a dark corner is just like anything else left alone in a dark corner—it doesn't particularly like it.

If you remember your biology classes, chlorophyll, the green coloring of plants, is formed by light, not sunshine. So, if you want green, healthy plants, give them some form of light.

THE DELVIGNES will also give you information regarding the watering of plants. Drowning kills more house plants than drought—so don't overwater them. Never water a plant unless it needs more moisture. Use tepid water, not real cold water, and pour until bubbles no longer come from the soil.

Better learn this advice if you want to cultivate that "green thumb." Remember, that each plant is an individual, and deserves individual care. Ask at the stand, you'll receive correct information regarding the care of each plant.

NOW . . choose a good book on house plants or watch the homemaking magazines. Select house plants you'd like to have for late winter and early spring, then journey down to Delvigne's stand at Center Market City.

Once you start cultivating house plants it becomes like any other hobby—a form of fun and enjoyment.

THOMAS & SLYE will deliver cut flowers you want for a special occasion. If it's a wedding, a dinner party, reception, tea or flowers for a friend in the hospital, they'll make a charming arrangement for you. They also make funeral sprays and wreaths.

If it's special flowers for special celebrations, phone Thomas & Slye at NAtional 5386.
